RETREAT IN GREECE CONTINUES

EVERYONE TO BE HIT IF TAX BILL PASSES

Increase of 50 Per Cent on Personal Income Rates Planned, Report.

BIG FELLOWS PAY, TOO

Corporate Income Taxes to Go Up; Levy on Gasoline and Cigarets Increases.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Thousands of taxpayers — little men and big men alike—will have to pay two or three times their present income tax, informed sources predicted today, if congress adopts the treasury program for raising $3,500,000,000 in new federal revenue.

The program, authoritative reports said, carried the following major provisions:

Individual incomes — an increase of the present 4.4 per cent basic tax rate to 6.6 per cent. Also elimination of the existing 10 per cent earned income credit deduction. Personal exemption rates would remain unchanged.

Income surtaxes — steep increasse. Whereas surtaxes are now imposed on taxable incomes in excess of $4,000, they would begin with those over $2,000. Present surtaxes range from 4 to 75 per cent and are levied in addition to the basic 4.4 per cent "normal" rate.

Corporate incomes—an increase from the present 24 per cent to 30 per cent.

Travel—A tax of about 10 per cent on railroad, plane, bus and other transportation tickets.

Checks—A 2 cent tax on each check drawn.

Gasoline—1 cent more, making the federal tax 2½ cents per gallon.

Cigarets—8 cents tax on a pack of 20, a 1½ cent boost.

Other items — Increases in beer, wine, whisky and automobile purchase taxes. New levies on candy, chewing gum, soft drinks.

Federal securities—A plan to reach with taxation all or part of the income from the billions of dollars invested in hitherto tax exempt government bonds.

An advance in the basic income tax rate of 6.6 per cent and repeal of the earned income credit would hit taxpayers' pockets something like this:

A single person with a taxable earned income of $1,000 after all deductions except his personal exemption of $800 would pay $13.20, instead of $4.40 as at present.

A childless married couple with a taxable earned income of $3,900 would pay $66 instead of $30.80.

The new surtax schedule, details of which were not available,

AID SHIP SUNK

Red Cross Says Greek Mercy Vessel Went to Bottom.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Red Cross officials today disclosed that a ship carrying a $120,000 Red Cross relief cargo to Greece has been sunk while another vessel bearing a $2,000,000 shipment to Athens has been missing for a month.

The Greek freighter Gregoris, carrying drugs, blankets, clothing and food for discharge at Athens was lost "somewhere in the South Atlantic" three weeks ago.

Nothing has been heard for four weeks from the Greek freighter Cassandra Louloulis, en route to Athens with the $2,000,000 cargo.

Hitler Strikes at French Birthrate By Keeping Most Virile Segment of Population In Concentration Camps

(Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of articles by International News Service correspondent on conditions in occupied and unoccupied France.)

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

LISBON—A corollary of war, removal from civil life of the most virile segment of the population, brings automatically a rapid decrease in the national birth rate.

It is as certain as death and taxes. Birth rates of all combatant nations in World war I—Germany, France, Britain and others—plummeted to alarming depths But war aside, what would be the result of a methodical plan of a man, with the power to do so, to gear the numerical rise or fall of posterity to his present-day dreams of conquest?

That terrible intention, fantastic as it seems, has become a terrible reality.

The French quit in this war before they could be bled as they were from 1914 to 1918. But that quick surrender is not sparing the French race. It is being sapped dangerously, albeit quietly.

Because of the 1,800,000 French war prisoners still being held in German camps, there are and will continue to be empty cradles throughout France this year.

Even before the war, declining birthrate was one of France's chief problems Now a period of almost complete barrenness is setting in, and this period is likely to last for a long time. For there is little likelihood that these unfortunate 1,800,000 captives will see freedom until after the war.

"Don't be fooled by any talk of liberating the prisoners," an extremely well-informed official told me in Paris "They are in for the duration of the war, no matter how many years it lasts or which way it goes.

"They are too valuable to Hitler where they are. Remember, almost every family in France has at least one relative among the prisoners. By promising to better, or threatening to make worse, the condition of the prisoners, Hitler can exercise a diabolically strong influence on the French public.

"Also, you must remember, these 1,800,000 prisoners represent most of the virile force of France. By keeping them locked up, Hitler not only assures his defense against revolt of the French for the present, but he is weakening future generations by keeping the birthrate

Draft Too Rigid

Physical regulations for selection of draftees have been "too rigid," especially regarding minor defects, said Dr. Roger I. Lee at the opening of the convention of the American College of Physicians in Boston. "In this age of specialism in soldiery," he said, "when a man is not required to do every job, there should be places of value for those who have such minor defects."

JAMESON HITS AT LOBBYISTS

Senator Strikes Out After Senate Fails To O. K. Move To Probe Journal.

Angered at the Ohio senate's action in killing his motion for an investigation of the senate journal, Senator Joseph Jameson today lashed at lobbying activities in connection with the state plumbing code bill, now under consideration.

Jameson, who represents the 27th-29th district, which includes Richland county, had demanded the investigation of the journal after discovering that it had altered the wording of an amendment to the code as it had been approved by the senate health committee, of which he is a member.

In committee sessions, Jameson said today, health department officials had proposed an amendment which would have allowed the use of cement pipe for storm sewers but not for sanitary sewers. Jameson said today, health department officials had proposed an amendment which would have allowed the use of cement pipe for storm sewers but not for sanitary sewers. Jameson said health department officials held cement pipe unsatisfactory for such use.

FDR ORDERS NEW CONFERENCE TO END COAL STRIKE

Southern Operators Called To Meet With Secretary To Reach Settlement.

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Southern coal operators, acting at the request of the White House, agreed today to return to New York and reopen negotiations with the United Mine Workers for a contract which would permit resumption of coal production in the Appalachian area bituminous mines.

(By Associated Press)

President Roosevelt ordered a new conference today between his secretary, Major Gen. E. M. Watson, and southern soft coal mine operators in an effort to speed resumption of coal production.

Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, said Watson saw the operators last night on behalf of the president to try to get them to return to New York to resume conract negotiations with the United Mine Workers union.

The president urged in a formal statement last night that the operators and union settle their dispute over wages and get mines back into operation in the interest of national defense.

Early said the president had heard nothing from the appeal except information relayed by Labor Secretary Perkins and Dr. John R. Steelman, federal labor conciliation director.

"Bituminous Coal production must be resumed, and promptly," the president declared in a formal statement issued at the White House last night.

An important labor development in the aluminum industry shared interest with the president's coal stand.

Late last night the Aluminum Company of America and CIO aluminum workers reached an agreement calling for a flat wage increase of eight cents an hour for 17.000 hourly-paid employes at five plants—Alcoa, Tenn., Badin, N. C., Detroit, Mich., Edgewater, N. J., and New Kensington, Pa. The agreement is subject to ratification by local unions.

ENVOY REPORTS

Jap Minister Points to Three 'Peaceful Achievements.'

TOKYO—(AP)—Japan's "three achievements within six months" should convince the United States that her intentions are strictly peaceful, Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka told newspapermen today on his return from conversations in Berlin, Rome and Moscow.

He listed these achievements as the three-power pact among Germany, Italy and Japan, Japanese recognition of the Nanking regime as the "basic government" of China, and the recently signed Soviet-Japanese neutrality pact.

However, in answer to a question whether Japan contemplated a non-aggression pact with the United States he replied: "I do not know."

BELFAST, Northern Ireland—(AP)—About 500 persons were killed, 420 seriously injured and 1,142 slightly injured in last Tuesday night's mass German raid on Belfast and other regions of northern Ireland, it was announced today in the House of Commons.

The security minister said the death toll may go higher since bodies still are being recovered.

Allies Fall Back In Greece

Faced by the greatly superior numbers of the invading German armies, British and Greek forces defending Greece have fallen back still further from their original main line of defense. The shaded area in the above Central Press map shows the approximate area occupied by German and Italian troops.

The black line, running between Arta and Lamia, is where the allies had planned to make a stand, but the German advance today was reported to have turned both ends of that line, and the desperate allies were expected to make a "last stand" farther south, near historic Thermopylae pass.

MEETS ON LIGHT RATE CONTRACT

Data Ready, Council's Utilities Committee to Consider Offer Submitted by O. P. S.

The five-year contract offer by the Ohio Public Service company to lower domestic electric rates, sidetracked at its regular April meeting by council, will be taken up again at a meeting tomorrow by council's public utilities committee, Russell D. Porch, committee chairman, announced today.

Porch said that he had collected statistics and statements from other cities served by the company and had tabulated them. He will present the data to the committee and will ask a decision on the new rate offer.

Mansfield is at present paying as high an electric rate as any city served by the company. The company is offering a rate which is as low as any offered to any city it serves.

Public utility committee members were not able to agree on a recommendation of an ordinance incorporating the five-year offer last month. Porch was asked to investigate the rates in other cities. Councilmen Fred Miller and A. L. Croak were unwilling to approve a five-year contract without more investigation.

Porch said that he would ask the committee to make some decision for presentation to council at its next regular meeting. The company had requested that the city adopt the ordinance as soon as possible so that they could organize a sales force and induct the lower rates by July 1.

Joy A. Herbert, company manager, said that the new rates would save domestic users $350,000 in the five-year period.

Connie's Hubby Awaits Draft As They Plan Trip

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Brimming with happiness over their surprise wedding in Yuma, Ariz., Sunday, Constance Bennett and Gilbert Roland were back in Hollywood today.

Roland disclosed he had recently returned his selective service questionnaire and was liable to be called "almost any time."

"I expect my address before long will be at Fort Ord or Fort MacArthur," he said.

To which Miss Bennett added: "I will live in a tent nearby."

They also said they planned a brief trip to New York and would leave by plane late this week.

ASSURES AID

Winant Tells London Audience U. S. Will Give Help.

LONDON — (AP) — The United States ambassador to London, John G. Winant, told the American Chamber of Commerce today that "we are not concerned with words—we are determined to help (Britain) by action to insure total victory over totalitarian aggression."

He said that between Americans and "the free and unconquerable people of this island" there existed "a bond of common sympathy and understanding, of common purpose and devotion which will live on long after Nazi tyranny has been broken and destroyed."

Winant declared that American business men and manufacturers residing in Britain could do much to "hasten the day of complete victory over Nazi tyranny" by sharing their knowledge of production methods with British industry.

MAYOR OPPOSES AIDS, AGAINST SUBWAY CLOSING

Claims Partial Closing Is All That's Needed; Director and Engineer Cite Dangers.

Mayor William J. Locke was at odds today with two of his chief aids concerning the need for closing the Park avenue east subway during the construction of a new 12-inch water line from the subway to Wayne street.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and City Engineer W. C. Statler had previously announced that the subway would be closed to allow workmen to install the line under the subway. The mayor today said that he could see no reason why two-way traffic could not be maintained on one-half of the subway while the other half was being constructed.

Crafton and Statler advised against this because they believed it would be too dangerous. Both men said that traffic under the subway, a part of Route 42, is too congested and that chances for an accident would be too great.

Statler also commented that it would entail the use of at least two workmen with flags to maintain traffic and that the time lost in waiting for traffic to pass under the subway would be much greater than required to detour by way of East Fourth street.

The mayor had also demanded that work on city streets being repaired be completed as soon as possible. He asked Statler to fill in the patches with any asphalt material now on hand.

Statler and Crafton have been awaiting the arrival of a shipment of black top asphalt from the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company. The company has been building a smokeless plant in Mansfield and must fill orders from its Bloomville plant.

Asphalt is needed not only to repair winter patches but also to complete the task of repaving strips torn up on several streets in the construction of the $70,000 Lexington avenue high-pressure waterline.

Statler announced today that the company had assured delivery by Friday and that city workers would begin spreading it then. A portion of the asphalt will be

Lashes Duke For Social Visit In Britain's Crisis

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Rep. Stephen M. Young, (D. O.), today denounced the Duke of Windsor for entering American social life "in England's heroic hour."

The congressman-at-large from Cleveland issued this comment:

"It is high time that someone in American public life paid proper respects to the Duke of Windsor. So here goes.

"The Duke and Duchess of Windsor returned to Florida for four gay days of cocktail parties, golf, luncheons and dinners at Palm Beach and Wally's long predicted debut in American society.

"In this, England's heroic hour, when noblemen and commoners alike are being killed, it is abominable, disgusting and contemptible for Americans to cater to this little man who hastily took off his officer's uniform and skedaddled to Spain and safety when British officers were facing death as the iron ring formed around Dunkerque."

Germans Turn Both Ends of Allied Lines

Storm Toward Thermopylae Pass Where British, Greeks Prepare For 'Last Stand'; Royal Navy Bombs Nazis At Tripoli.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—British naval aircraft have torpedoed a 10,000-ton tanker, 6,000-ton supply ship and 7,000-ton ammunition ship carrying supplies to the Axis forces in the Balkans, the admiralty announced today.

BULLETIN

ISTANBUL—(UP)—German troops in speed boats today were reported to have occupied the Greek island off Samotherace, just outside Turkish territorial waters, and to have attacked the Greek island of Lemnos, dominating the entrance to the Dardanelles. The British had been reported holding Lemnos.

(By Associated Press)

Germany's blitzkrieg armies cracked both ends of the Allied line and stormed toward historic Thermopylae Pass today—less than 100 miles from Athens—after capturing the Aegean coastal towns of Volos and Lamia, as well as Ionnina in western Greece.

Hitler's high command said Nazi columns had trapped Greek forces retreating from Albania.

British middle east headquarters reported tersely that British troops falling back from the Mt. Olympus sector in eastern Greece "have now occupied defensive positions south of Lamia."

This may mean that the British are preparing to make a "last ditch" stand near the Thermopylae gap where 300 Spartans under King Leonidas held off an invasion army led by Persian King Xerxes in 480 B. C.

The new defense line was apparently being established in the rugged Lokris mountains, below the flat plain of Thessaly.

Lamia lies south of the Othrys mountains, where it was believed that the Allies had previously decided to make a stand.

Italian dispatches had pictured the British-Greek line as stretching from Lamia to Arta, across the upper middle of the Grecian peninsula. Arta lies 25 miles inland from the Ionian sea, 38 miles south of Ioannina.

The Nazi high command asserted that German panzer columns sweeping westward across the Pindus mountains to Ioannina had effectively blocked the Greeks' main route of retreat to the south.

Premier Mussolini's high command said Italian legions were advancing into Greece along the entire Albanian front.

Fascist dispatches from the fighting zones said that the Greeks were resisting violently as they retreated, and that while Italian infantry moved down the valleys, Alpine assault troops had to scale steep mountainsides under fire from machine-gun nests to drive out the Greeks.

In Rome, the Fascist newspaper Il Tevere published an "unconfirmed report" attributed to Lisbon newspaper circles that the Greek army surrendered last night.

Italian dispatches had previously asserted that 12 Greek divisions —about 150,000 men—were hopelessly trapped by Axis forces in the Ioannina sector.

Hitler's high command, noting "special successes" in violent

NEXT: Turkey Expects Nazi Demands And Military Attack

(By United Press)

ISTANBUL, Turkey—Turkey believes that it is next on Germany's program of conquest and expects a series of unacceptable demands soon, it was said authoritatively today.

Well-informed diplomatic quarters believe Germany will attack Turkey before the end of June and probably sooner.

Authoritative opinion is that there are but two chances that Turkey will escape an early attack —one that Germany will drive across Egypt and thus succeed in reaching Suez, from the west, the other that Germany will attack Russia first.

Baron Franz von Papen, now on a visit to his government in Berlin, is expected to return only with the first of an increasingly harsh series of demands which, according to every indication, the government is prepared for and which it is determined to reject.

It was believed that Germany would insist that Turkey abandon its alliance with Great Britain and march with Germany against Egypt, with the promise that it would get Syria and the Iraq oil fields after the war.

The Germans were expected to start with fairly mild demands and work up to a climax, as they have done with other countries.

The Turkish government is understood to have decided to make no concessions whatever, military or political, in the belief that Germany is determined on military action anyway and purposes to march through Turkey with or without Turkish consent.

'Mystery' Fire Alarm Throws Crowd In Turmoil At Simpson

City and school officials today were investigating the latest in the series of mysterious false alarms at John Simpson Junior high school which last night threw scores of persons attending meetings there into turmoil.

Evidently on edge as the result of the $100,000 Sunday night fire at the Home Materials lumber yard, members of the board of education and persons attending other meetings rushed from the building when the alarm was given.

The alarm blared out in the hall while the board was in session. Members ran into the hall to investigate. J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings, who was attending the meeting, made an inspection tour. Moke was finally forced to remove a fuse to shut off the siren.

Besides the school board, members of a Red Cross first aid class and a Civil Aeronautics class were meeting in the building. All ran outside the building when the siren sounded.

Fire Chief Charles Seeburger dismissed the alarm as a schoolboy prank, saying that the department was bothered with many similar calls when meetings were held there.

Companies 1, 2 and 3 answered the false alarm and a large crowd attracted by the fire engines, soon gathered.

Moke said today that the false

Tells Cooking School Crowd Kitchen Work Should Be Hobby

The Mansfield News-Journal all-electric cooking school swung into action at the Madison theater this morning with Mrs Mabel B. Bowen, cookery and household expert, advising her audience of homemakers to regard cooking as a hobby and an art.

Eight hundred women were on hand for the opening demonstration and to share in the prizes that are a feature of each day's program. The school continues through Friday each morning starting at 9 o'clock.

Meal-planners were inspired by the lecturer to use imagination in their cookery, to contrive fresh disguises for the "same old dishes" by taking advantage of differences in flavor, color, form, texture and temperature.

As she went about the process of broiling steaks, grilling potatoes, stirring up pastries and making salads Mrs. Bowen gave her audience many helpful hints

She told the women, for instance, how to stretch the food dollar to cover a maximum of nourishment, how to recognize foods rich in vitamins and how to build sturdy bodies that would resist desease.

ATTACK: British Fleet In 'Our Sea' Batters Tripoli

(By United Press)

LONDON—Britain's Mediterranean battle fleet, aiding the embattled army of the Nile, has heavily bombarded Tripoli, capital of Italian Libya and landing point for the German forces which have thrust across the African coast to the Egyptian border, the admiralty announced today.

The fleet which had bombarded Genoa and shattered the Italian navy as a fighting force in the battle of Cape Matapan on March 28, carried out its new bombardment at dawn yesterday.

It was indicated that the 15-inch gun battleships which sank at least three Italian cruisers and three destroyers off Cape Matapan, led a 40-minute attack intended to cripple port facilities and stop the flow of German reinforcements in men and weapons across the narrow strait of Sicily.

The first admiralty communique on the bombardment said:

"A heavy bombardment of the port of Tripoli was carried out by our naval forces at dawn yesterday.

"The bombarding force consisted of both heavy and light units.

"No further details are yet available."

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

After the terrific build-up he's had, Ohio State grid fans will be terribly disappointed next fall if Paul Brown doesn't produce one of the greatest teams in Buckeye history.

But the one person least worried by the outlook is Paul Brown. That is what Massillon bowlers, who were in town Sunday, tell me.

Brown confided to his friends back home that anybody could win at Ohio State next fall, with the bunch of freshmen they've got.

That's one place Brown has it over Frances Schmidt. He knows his Ohio high school football, and players. And that's where Ohio State must get its football teams, always.

Brown, so the Massillons tell me, is still high on Johnny Hallabrin, Mansfield's contender for the fullback post on the Buck team of next autumn.

If he had his choice of an all-star backfield right now of all the Ohio high school gridders he has seen in his long stay at Massillon, Brown would pick:

Johnny Hallabrin at fullback, Bob Glass of Massillon, and Johnson of Akron West at the halves, and Simonetti of New Philadelphia, quarter.

That may surprise the grid bugs who'd expect Brown to lean toward his Massillon stars. But it shows definitely that he isn't blind to the qualities of any football player he sees out on that gridiron.

The Massillons are having their coaching troubles, but next fall's team will stack up as just about the fastest in history.

The speed will come in the line, so I'm informed. It'll be one of the fastest charging forward walls the Massillons have seen, and when you've got a frontispiece like that, the backfield and the coaches will take care of themselves.

But to get back to the coaching problem, Massillon's school board had to go into a quick huddle last week when Mel Knowlton, backfield mentor, took the head coaching job at Steubenville.

Knowlton reportedly was getting $3,000, and the board boosted the ante in a hurry to $3250 in an effort to keep him. That meant he'd be getting close to the dividend declared for Head Coach Bud Houghton, so Bud's pay was raised accordingly. But Mel had made his commitments, and went to Steubenville at less money.

And the thing that worries the Massillons is the fact that Steubenville meets the Tigers on Oct. 17. The new Steub tutor shouldn't have to scout much for that game.

Sande Honored For Record

Jockey Has Done Most To Help Profession.

BALTIMORE — (AP) — Earle Sande, whose riding feats made racing history a few years ago, was singled out by the Jockey's Community Fund and Guild today as the jockey who had done the most to honor his profession.

The little guy, who booted home three Kentucky Derby winners and was considered tops in the hazardous riding game before he turned trainer, will be honored for his "fairness and sportsmanship" at a testimonial dinner to be given by the Jockeys guild following the Preakness at Pimlico, May 10.

The dinner was arranged by a committee consisting of Irving Anderson, Sam Renick, Eddie Arcara, Johnny Gilbert, Harry Richards, Leo Haas, Don Meade and Alfred Robertson. Anderson is chairman and Renick will be master of ceremonies. Bowes is president of the guild.

"In selecting Sande," said the committee, "the directors considered that he besides being one of the outstanding riders of his generation has always maintained his display of fairness and sportsmanship to be worthy of the honor that is to be bestowed upon him."

Veterans Star In Spring

Oldsters Find Fountain of Youth In Majors.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THIS is going to be another "comeback year" for many old gaffers shown little respect for age or service in the big leagues last season.

Somehow, a handful of these fellows find the fountain of youth every season. Jimmy Wilson, Johnny Cooney, Fred Fitzsimmons and other prominent veterans hit the trail last year, and another group apparently is on the right track this spring.

The only big show pitcher who has scored two victories in the season's first week is Wesley Cheek Ferrell, 33-year-old right-hander who was counted out of the American League over a year ago and couldn't make the grade in the National last season.

The Boston Bees signed him up during the winter, and he looks like he will stick around the Hub awhile, if only to pitch against the Phillies. He received credit for a victory over them last Thursday by pitching three shutout innings in relief.

Yesterday, he went the whole route against the tail-enders, allowing only five hits in an 8-1 triumph. Joe Marty, first batter of the game, hit a home run for the long Philadelphia tally.

Mell Ott, who has spent exactly half of his 32 years playing with the New York Giants, was supposedly tottering on aging legs last summer. His eyes were going bad, too, some folks said, and he tried wearing spectacles at the plate.

But he has hit four home runs—tying Joe DiMaggio and Bob Doerr, for the major league lead—and sparked his Giants to six victories in seven games to keep them at the top of the National League heap.

His fourth homer came during yesterday's 7-5 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers before a big Monday turnout of 17,910 at the polo grounds. Bump Hadley, who will be 37 years old in a couple of months, pitched six innings for the winners and left the game in the lead. The Dodgers subsequently tied the score, and young John Wittig got credit for the victory. The Giants' victim for the second time in a week was Kirby Higbe, who beat them five times for the Phils last year.

Mel Harder, Lefty Gomez and Cy Blanton are among other veterans who previously had shown signs of making comebacks this season.

The rush of the Boston Red Sox finally was stopped at Washington yesterday by the lowly Senators, who burst out with four runs in the seventh inning and staggered to a 6-5 victory. Steve Sundra, whom the Senators recently purchased from the Yanks, was nicked for 11 hits, but received fine support in the pinches, and his teammates ripped three Boston hurlers for a dozen safeties. Cecil Travis accounted for four of them—two doubles and two singles.

The Sox had won five straight previously and even in defeat held onto their American League lead.

The New York Yankees made hash out of the Philadelphia Athletics again with a 17-hit bombardment that brought a 14-4 victory. Joe DiMaggio hit a home run, a double and two singles, and every other bomber except Pitcher Atley Donald got at least one safety. Joe Gordon also accounted for a homer.

Donald gave up four runs and five hits, two of them homers by Frank Hayes and Wally Moses, in the first four innings. But he didn't allow a hit in the last five stanzas.

Rain and cold weather put off contests scheduled for the western clubs.

After five months of negotiations, the Boston Bees' baseball club, National league contender, has been sold to a Boston syndicate headed by President Bob Quinn and Manager Casey Stengel and including Francis Ouimet, the noted amateur golfer. The syndicate purchased Charles F. Adams' controlling interest in the club, amounting to about 73 per cent of the stock. No price was divulged but it was frequently said Adams' price was believed to be $350,000.

Three Indians To Feel Ax

Club Must Trim Roster In Next 24 Days.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Some time in the next 24 days, three Cleveland Indians are going to get the ax.

To meet the American League's May 15 deadline on a 25-man roster, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh will have to cut his outfield and pitching staff.

Gerry Walker, Roy Weatherly, Jeff Heath and Beau Bell are fixtures in the garden and the unlucky fly-chaser will be picked from Charley Workman, Murray Howell and Clarence Campbell. Howell, a veteran, was batting champion of the International League last season and was purchased for pinch-hitting duty.

The two flingers slated to go will come from Joe Krakauskas, Cal Dorsett, Ken Jungles, Nate Andrews and Mike Naymick. The departure of Bill Zuber yesterday left the Indians with veterans Clint Brown, Joe Heving and Harry Eisenstat to back up their "Big Five" of Bob Feller, Al Milnar, Al Smith, Jim Bagby and Mel Harder.

Milnar was renominated to start against St. Louis today after rain washed out the opener of a three-game series yesterday. Manager Fred Haney of the Browns also stuck to his pitching choice—Submarine-baller Elden Auker.

Fight Results

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Harvey Dubs, 135, Windsor, Ont., stopped Billy Seward, 134½, Decatur, Count (1).

NEW YORK—Jimmy Kay Kaplan, 146½, Los Angeles, outpointed Aldo Spoldi, 146½, Italy (6).

CINCINNATI—Joe Brown, 135, Chicago, outpointed Jackie Wilson, 137½, Pittsburgh (10).

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Kid Chocolate, 128, Cuba, knocked out Joe Sirka, 128½, Detroit (10).

TYGER TRACKSTERS HAVE BUSY WEEK

Mansfield High tracksters have another busy week ahead of them. Tomorrow they meet Akron Garfield at stadium field, and Saturday they split up for the Huntington and Ohio Wesleyan relays.

Coach Harry Mehock will take part of the team to Huntington, and Grid Coach Paul Snyder will take the rest to Delaware.

Craft Hits For Redlegs

Displays Form Shown as Rookie In 1938.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Last year the Cincinnati Reds won the National League pennant without a .300 hitter in the outfield but it looks as if lighthorse Harry Craft is going to have something to say about the champs having at least one gardener above the coveted mark.

The bat of the Redleg centerfielder has been the biggest noise in the six games the world champions have played. Although six games do not make a season, Craft has begun to display the hitting form that made him one of the outstanding rookies in 1938.

The 26-year-old outfielder has been bothered by poor health for the last two years but when Craft reported hale and hearty this spring with all of his former weight back on his shoulders, Manager Bill McKechnie knew he had a new man on his team.

To date Craft has rapped out 10 hits in his 22 trips to the plate for a .455 average, the best mark possessed by a Redleg regular. Two home runs and two doubles are included in the blows. Craft and Shortstop Eddie Joost led the team in runs driven in with six apiece.

The Reds' two-game winning streak was halted temporarily when their game with the Chicago Cubs was rained out. But the two teams were set for the series opener today. Johnny Vander Meer was McKechnie's choice while Bill Lee, who signed his contract only 11 days ago, was due to open for the Cubs.

Colonels Have Tight Defense

Sound Pitching Helps In Drive To Top.

(By Associated Press)

Sound pitching, tight defense and timely but not extravagant hitting has given the Louisville Colonels a head start on their rivals in the American Association campaign.

The Colonels go for their sixth straight victory today against Milwaukee in the only game scheduled.

Milwaukee fell before Louisville Monday, 4 to 3, although getting two more hits. This was the Colonels' third one-run decision.

Columbus, rated the flag favorite, fell into a second place tie with Indianapolis by losing a 17 to 11 slugfest to the Minneapolis Millers.

Ray Starr pitched Indianapolis to a 4 to 2 victory over Kansas City, yielding only six hits for his third mound decision of the young season.

St. Paul, after losing three straight, won three in a row by outlasting Toledo, 7 to 4.

PRACTICE CALLED

The N. & W. Coal Service softball team will practice Wednesday and Friday evening at 6:00 p. m. at Liberty park. All players and any new ones are asked to report at the park.

Tribe Hurlers Please Peck

'Big Five' Show Stuff In Early Assignments.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Before the season started, Cleveland Indian Coach Luke Sewell told Manager Roger Peckinpaugh that the Tribe pitching staff would show him hurling the like of which he has not seen on one team in all his baseball career.

The Indian manager was inclined to agree somewhat with his coach today after having watched each of his five starters in action. Two of the doubtful quantities of the mound staff, Mel Harder and Jim Bagby, jr., have shown their readiness for good years.

The veteran Harder is a month ahead of last year's schedule when he didn't make his first start until May 22. Harder turned the trick against the Tigers Sunday for a 4 to 2 victory in his initial appearance of the season. Rollie Hemsley said after the game that Harder had more stuff than he has shown since Hemsley caught him in the All-Star game in 1935.

Bagby, in his only start, pitched a creditable game but was beaten 4 to 2 by the Tigers. Bob Feller is set for the current pennant drive. This was demonstrated in his 2 to 1 win in the series with Detroit.

Nothing is to be desired about the performances of Southpaws Al Smith and Al Milnar to date. The two portsiders turned in shutout triumphs in the opening series with the White Sox.

Milnar was due for his second start today as the Indians and St. Louis Browns opened their series after yesterday's game was called because of rain. Eldon Auker was nominated by Manager Fred Haney to open for the Brownies.

HEDGES HOOPSTERS TO BE HONORED

Hedges P. T. A. members will honor the school's undefeated basketball team with a dinner Thursday at 6:30 in the Hedges gym.

Trophies won in the grade league and tournament will be awarded the team, together with letters. Harry Mehock, director of physical education for Mansfield schools, will be among the speakers.

Bellville Battles Madison

Blue Jay Gridders Meet Rams Thursday Night.

It's a little bit early in the season, but Bellville and Madison high school gridders will have at it Thursday night at 8 o'clock under the lamps at Madison field.

Coach Al Fendrick of the Madison Rams had planned to stage a night game between next autumn's eleven and his present seniors, but when he started counting noses he couldn't find enough seniors.

So he was very happy yesterday when Coach Cece Lindsay of Bellville called up to ask for a practice game. Madison could have charged admission for the intramural tilt, but the Bellville game will have a free gate to comply with the state high school athletic association rules.

"In the long run," says Fendrick, "we'll make more money by staging this game for the free. Bellville plays here next fall, and fans who see Thursday night's game will want to come back next autumn to see the Rams and Blue Jays tangle when the score goes down in the books."

The game will wind up the spring training season for the Rams, but Bellville still has a week to go in the spring drills.

Officials will be Coaches Paul Snyder and Vern Hoffman of Mansfield High, and Walt Weimer, star fullback of last year's Madison team.

Neither Fendrick nor Lindsay was sure of his starting lineup, but their best guesses follow:

Madison	Pos.	Bellville
Poston	le	McConaghi
Brumenshekel	lt	Baldwin
Batson (C)	lg	Livingstone
R. Fletcher	c	Hamilton
Keller	rg	Lucas
Stone	rt	Stoodt
P. Wynn	re	Myers
Hammer	qb	Spade
Anthony	lh	Gill
Bishop	rh	Stout
Bell	fb	Keiser

For Madison the following boys will probably see action: J. Fletcher, Jobe, Harfman, McDowell, W. Wynn, Windsor and Quicksall.

Gabby Brings Noise

Hartnett Foghorn Voice Keeps LaGuardia Awake.

By HARRY FERGUSON.

NEW YORK —(U P)— Mayor Laguardia has been working earnestly for years to cut down the noise in this big city, and just when it looked like he was going to succeed along came Gabby Hartnett.

The former manager of the Chicago Cubs brought with him his fog-horn voice, his incessant chatter on the ball field and his habit of barking at the opposition at tight stages of the game.

The mere presence of Hartnett as catcher and pinch hitter for the New York Giants would have been enough to increase the noise in New York City by 1.250 decibels and put a serious crimp in the mayor's campaign.

On top of that, Hartnett has been lugging his big bat to the plate and adding to the roar of the metropolis by booming out base hits that echoed like the clap of doom from the Polo Grounds to Ebbets Field. Right now the old guy is the best pinch hitter in the National League. Truly, life begins at 40, for that is the number of years Charles Leo Hartnett has spent on this earth.

Three times this season Manager Bill Terry of the Giants has called on Hartnett to go up there in the clutch and pinch hit. He singled once, doubled once, and drove an outfielder all the way to the fence to haul down the ball on his third attempt. That gives him a cool .667 batting average and probably gives nightmares to the man who cut Gabby loose as manager of the Cubs last fall—Owner Phil Wrigley.

Hartnett always has been a popular player here and he is fast becoming the idol of the faithful at the Polo Grounds. In addition to knocking out hits regularly, he has given color and dash to a ball club that can use it like a taxpayer can use money on March 16.

In Brooklyn, where the Giants are hated like a smallpox epidemic, Hartnett is a straight-eight, super-special, 17-jewel bum. It so happens that all of his pinch hits have been made against the Dodgers and if he is ever caught on a Brooklyn street after dark he will be arrested for high crimes and misdemeanors, not to mention assault and battery.

These are great days for Old Gabby and great days for his friends who are so numerous that you would have to hire the Grand Canyon if you wanted to assemble them in one place.

COACH NAMED

MASSILLON — (U.P.) — Melvin Knowlton, who quit as Massillon high school line coach to pilot the Steubenville high school football team, has been replaced by August Morningstar, assistant coach at Purdue University and former Massillon high school football star.

Barnes Enters Pro Tourney

Kenyon Coach Wields Racket In Joust.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va.—(U.P.)—Headed by the entry of former world's Champion Fred Perry, the annual open tennis tournament got under way here today with one of the largest fields in its five-year history.

The English star went into the opening day round as the favorite to win the title captured last year by Don Budge.

Although Budge was not on hand for the tourney, a suggestion by Lloyd Budge, the champion's brother, caused considerable debate among the players. Budge had proposed that 10 per cent of the $2,500 prize money be deducted for British war relief agencies.

Other stars entered in the meet were Bruce Barnes, 1939 titleholder and Kenyon, O., college tennis coach, Karel Kozeluh, the Czech ace who won in 1937, and Richard Skeen, Californian who held the crown in 1938.

The semi-finals and finals of the tournament will be played Saturday and Sunday.

Jockey Strapped to Pony Ring Mount

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)—Cherub-faced Jackie Skelly, who goes east this week to ride for the Brandywine stable, took a farewell auto trip with Jimmy Sinnott and the latter's two young daughters.

The girls insisted Jackie accompany them to a pony ring, so he got into the saddle and started off at a trot.

"Hey," howled the operator, "that pony will throw you, kid. Wait 'till I strap you on."

Jackie, 17 and weighing a mere 95 pounds, solemnly let himself be strapped to the saddle.

"Aw gosh," he explained to the laughing Sinnott, "you didn't want me to hurt his feelings, did you?"

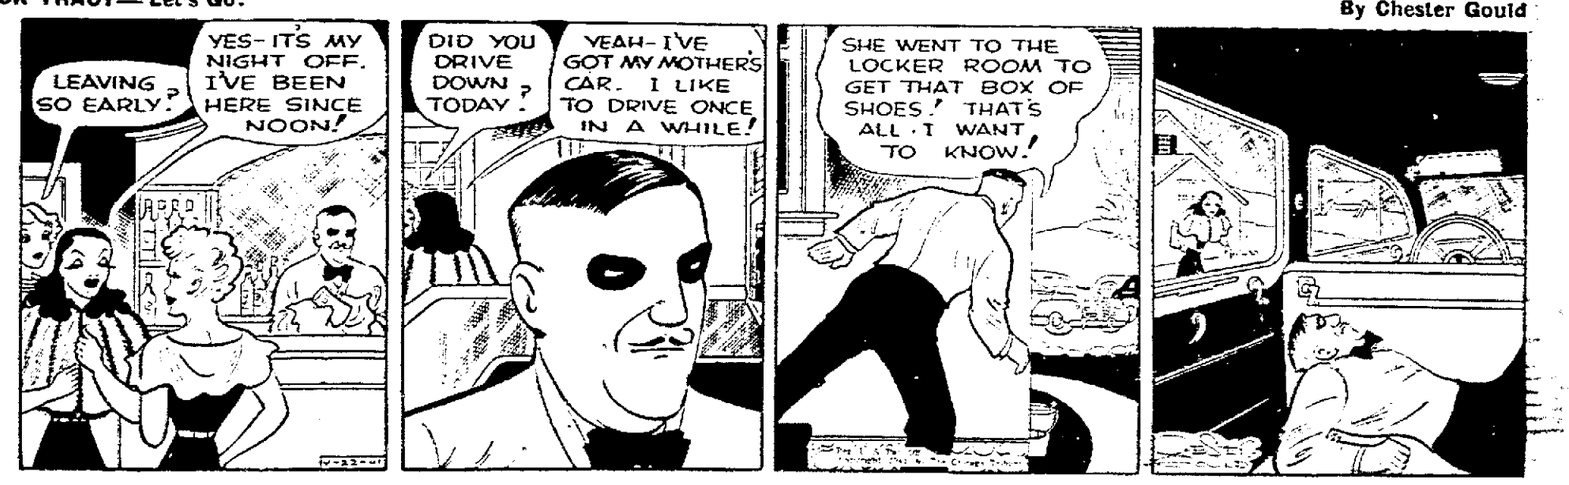
THE GUMPS—Looks Like Elastic Plastic Didn't Do So Well. By Gus Edson

EVERY TIME ELASTIC PLASTIC DROPS ½ A POINT, MIN LAUGHS — SHE'S GOT ME PEGGED AS THE BIGGEST MISTER SAP IN THE WORLD —
SHE'D ACTUALLY RATHER SEE ME LOSE MONEY — JUST TO BEAR OUT HER JUDGMENT — SHE'S THE KIND OF PERSON WHO LIVES JUST TO SAY, "I TOLD YOU SO"
ROLL OUT INTO THE WORLD, YOU LITTLE PUFFS OF SMOKE — AND BE PROUD — I DON'T KNOW WHERE YOUR FINISH WILL BE, BUT YOU STARTED FROM THE RIGHT PLACE — YOU'RE LEAVING THE MOUTHPIECE OF A FLOCK OF BRAINS — TELL THAT TO THE FOUR WINDS!

DICK TRACY—Let's Go! By Chester Gould



LEAVING SO EARLY?
YES-IT'S MY NIGHT OFF. I'VE BEEN HERE SINCE NOON!
DID YOU DRIVE DOWN TODAY?
YEAH-I'VE GOT MY MOTHER'S CAR. I LIKE TO DRIVE ONCE IN A WHILE!
SHE WENT TO THE LOCKER ROOM TO GET THAT BOX OF SHOES! THAT'S ALL I WANT TO KNOW!

used to resurface Davis road which has been recently improved.

Statler said that on Mayor Locke's request, he was investigating the possibility of leaving one-half of the roadway open while construction is being carried on. He indicated however, that the project would be completed quicker if the entire subway were closed.

Crafton said that he had ordered the subway closed to insure safety for motorists and workmen.

"A single accident caused by allowing one-half of the subway to remain open," said Crafton, "would more than discount the amount of time saved motorists."

The director previously had announced that the subway would not be closed until Fourth street has been reopened. Statler said that traffic should be resumed on Fourth street not later than Thursday. The street has been closed while the new water line has been extended from Fourth to Fifth streets on Dorien street.

"It's simply an engineering problem,' 'said the mayor. "The engineer should be able to assemble charts of the gas, electric and telephone companies and plan to do the necessary work in short easy stages."

Workmen today completed the construction of the line on Dorien street between Fourth and Fifth streets and prepared to fill in and repave the Fourth street intersection. The next step, according to Crafton, will be to dig trenches and lay pipe on Dorien street from Fourth to Third street. Work on this block will be completed as soon as possible to permit the Westinghouse company to repave the street.

From Dorien and Third street the line will run southeast to the subway where a new 12-inch valve connecting with the old line was stalled last week.

REPAIRS TO RURAL ROADS TO TAKE UNTIL JULY, SWORD SAYS

Damage to Richland county roads during the past winter was so extensive that the roads probably will not be repaired before July, County Engineer Howard Sword said today.

"Even with all the dry weather and sunshine we've had in April, there's still a surprising number of soggy places in the roads that cannot be repaired yet," Sword said.

The engineer previously estimated that it will require approximately $156,000 to put the county road system in good condition.

"We can't do all that work at one time because we don't have the money to finance it," he added.

He said the county road department has received none of its 1941 share of auto license fees from the state nor the balance due the county from the sale of last year's plates.

He said the road repair program would be stepped up as soon as the license tag money arrives. Virtually all of the county's highway construction and maintenance operations are financed by auto license and gas tax funds distributed by the state.

County commissioners last week authorized the engineer to purchase five new trucks for the road department, and Sword said he expected the new trucks to speed up the spring and summer repair projects since the old trucks were frequently out of order.

GERMANS TURN BOTH FLANKS OF ENEMY'S LINES

Continue Advance as British, Greeks Plan 'Last Stand' In Thermopylae Pass.

divebombing assaults on ships in Greek waters, declared the vessels "were being held ready for the departure of the British expeditionary corps fleeing from the Greek mainland."

The German high command said six loaded ships totalling 31,000 tons were sunk and several others heavily damaged.

On the North African front, Berlin reported that German troops had resumed their advance eastward from the Egyptian frontier post of Salum in a drive toward the Suez canal.

In an apparent attempt to smash the supply base for this threatened Axis onslaught, the British fleet hammered the west Libyan port of Tripoli with 15-inch shells in a 40-minute bombardment, the London admiralty announced.

British and Greeks said they had accomplished their latest withdrawal without a break in their front, but there were indications their plight was becoming desperate.

1. An Associated Press correspondent who reached neutral Turkey from Greece said the British expeditionary force—which he estimated at 50,000 to 80,000 men—was up against heavier odds than at Dunkerque. An Allied disaster, he declared, has seemed inevitable since the campaign's third day, when the Germans smashed through Bitolj, flanking Salonika's defenses.

2. Two British destroyers were said to have been standing by since last Thursday to evacuate King George II of Greece, the royal family and Greek officials in case flight became necessary.

3. A curfew was imposed in Athens, forbidding anyone from appearing in streets between 9 p. m. and 7 a. m. without special permit.

4. The British admitted continued withdrawals toward the south to avert encirclement by at least 30 German divisions.

German newspapers, meanwhile, raised a loud cry over British troop landings last Thursday and Friday in Iraq, oil-rich country at Turkey's back door. A German foreign office spokesman declared the British action was a breach of international law, and the press said it indicated Britain's desire to seek "a new and less dangerous offensive elsewhere." One German paper called England a "notorious seducer and murderer of small nations."

On the western end of the far-flung battlefront, the German air force carried the war to England again last night by singling out oft-bombed Plymouth for a sharp attack. London had a brief alert, but no bombs fell there.

The Royal Air Force also crossed the channel to stalk German raiders to their bases.

U. S. Observer In Egypt Killed

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A United States military air observer, Col. Gerald Brower, has been killed in Egypt.

Col. Brower, attached as an observer to the Royal Air Force in the middle east, is the first casualty among American military observers assigned to the European war zones.

The state department said a cablegram received today from the American legation in Cairo related that Colonel Brower was killed on Sunday at El Obeid, 250 miles southwest of Khartoum.

The cable gave no details but said the military attache at Cairo would report them to the war department.

was reported to mean stiff increases for higher income, particularly in the brackets between $5,000 and $25,000.

The detailed treasury proposal was submitted to the house ways and means committee at a closed meeting yesterday but Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) declined to give it out. Details will be disclosed, probably later this week, by Secretary Morgenthau, Doughton said.

Doughton's refusal to give out the plan brought a statement from Rep. Treadway (R., Mass.) that Republican committee members were opposed to "secrecy." Treadway added that the Republicans would demand that Morgenthau be summoned at once and the plan publicized.

FDR ORDERS NEW CONFERENCE TO END COAL STRIKE

Southern Operators Called To Meet With Secretary To Reach Settlement.

commented immediately on Mr. Roosevelt's call for an end to the soft coal stoppage.

"It is imperative that there be no shortage now, or at any other time, of coal for defense production purposes," the president said in urging that:

1. The miners and operators already in agreement resume coal production under terms of that agreement.

2. The operators and miners who have not reached an agreement enter into wage negotiations and at the same time reopen the mines, the agreement ultimately reached to be made retroactive to the date of resuming work.

Most mines have been closed, and about 400,000 miners have been idle, since a two-year contract between Appalachian operators and the CIO United Mine Workers expired April 1. The union, headed by John L. Lewis, demanded a general increase in wages to $7 a day, compared with $6 paid in the north and $5.60 in the south under the old contract.

Northern operators agreed to these terms, but southern mine owners declared that elimination of the sectional wage differential would force some of them out of business, and they withdrew from the negotiations. Then they offered the union an 11 per cent wage increase. Lewis counseled the union against signing a contract covering northern mines, unless the southern operators came in too.

The Michigan labor mediation board invoked a 30-day cooling-off period last night in a dispute between the CIO United Automobile workers and General Motors corporation. The union last Friday had filed a five-day notice of intention to strike, claiming unsatisfactory progress in concluding a new union-company contract. The CIO-UAW demands union shop recognition, wage increases and other concessions.

MYSTERY ALARM CAUSES STIR

alarm was caused by a defect in the school alarm system which was gradually being corrected. He said that Ernest Adams, city electrician, had discovered a cog in the alarm had slipped out of place, working over to the contact point gradually. The same incident occurred last year, Moke said.

The firemen answering the call had just completed their two-day job of clearing up the rubble of the Home Materials fire. All day Monday, water was poured into the still-blazing ruins. Late in the day, firemen sorted out the lumber untouched by fire, soaked it thoroughly and piled it at one end of the yard.

This morning, soggy, muddy piles of hose in front of the fire company houses were spread out to dry. Practically every foot of hose available in the city was used in the fire.

Chief Seeburger was still investigating the cause of the fire but said that he could find nothing to indicate its origin. He reiterated his early opinion that sparks from a passing train or defective wiring could have been responsible. Seeburger recalled that a previous fire at the lumberyard was caused from ashes shaken from the grate of a passing locomotive.

TANKER'S CREW CONQUERS FIRE

Ship Threatened By Blaze, Later Reports It's All Safe.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Fire today threatened the tanker transiter, laden with 14,000 barrels of gasoline, but the flames were brought under control and the motor vessel headed for Port Stanley, Ont., under tow of the steamer City of Toronto.

The Transiter, which left Cleveland last night with a crew of 15, reported the fire at a point 25 miles south of Port Burwell, Ont., as she headed for Port Colborne, Ont. The coast guard withdrew lifeboats it had dispatched to the scene after the City of Toronto reported the tanker in no danger and under tow.

JAMESON HITS AT LOBBYISTS

Senator Strikes Out After Senate Fails To O. K. Move To Probe Journal.

However, when the amendment, which was adopted, appeared in the journal, the words "for storm sewer purposes only" were missing from the amendment which stipulated that cement pipe could not be used for sanitary sewers.

Although declining to name anyone, Jameson charged today that he had been approached by a representative of the cement industry who had told him that the clay tile amendment would not pass. Jameson recounted that he had told the man that he did not believe that he could control the senate.

"However," said Jameson, "since the amendment did not appear as drafted, I have congratulated the lobbyist, since he apparently does control the Ohio senate."

Jameson went on to explain that he had no interest in the fight between cement and clay tile interests, but simply wanted to get the plumbing code bill passed.

"There have been no changes in the ode since about 1911," he said, "and it's time we had some action."

Jameson's motion to investigate the journal was killed on the resolution to expunge it offered by Senator H. T. Phillips, Republican, who is chairman of the health committee.

"It is a reflection on the clerk and the committee," Phillips was quoted as saying, in an International News Service dispatch. "why should a simple mistake in printing be subjected to the dignity of a senate investigation?"

HITLER STRIKES AT FRANCE IN ITS BIRTHRATE

Keeps 1,800,000 Most Virile Men Away From Homes In Concentration Camps.

down."

This official told me that Pierre Lavel had tried desperately to effect the release of the prisoners from August to December.

"If Laval, who is Hitler's man, couldn't get them out, who can?" he asked. "Laval made a terrible mistake last summer and knows it. When we signed the armistice, Laval was absolutely certain that England would be defeated inside five or six weeks. That is why he was willing to leave those prisoners in German hands. That is why he was willing to pay the absolutely fantastic sum of 400,000,000 francs a day to the German army of occupation. He thought it would all be over soon.

"He knows now that he was wrong about the British powers of resistance. But he still thinks they will lose eventually. So he will continue to work desperately for a German victory: not only because he feels that would be the quickest way to bring about release of our men, adjustment of payments and would be to the best general interests of France, but also because his head depends on a German victory. He will bring France into the war on the German side if he can."

From time to time small groups of prisoners, usually not more than 20 to 30, are released. On these occasions, the press in both occupied and unoccupied France are instructed to play up the news in a big way. In one of his shaky periods, Laval announced he was about to obtain the release of all prisoners who were fathers of four or more children. The press played this up hard. Few stopped to think that there were very few men in the army who were father of four and that prisoners of this category could not number more than a few hundred at the very most.

A few prisoners escape. They are invariably emaciated and all have the same stories of loss of weight due to bad or inadequate food. I met two old friends who, recently had escaped from different prison camps. One had lost 25 pounds and told of having to work from dawn to dark on a farm near Berlin. The other had lost 11 pounds. He had been in a camp near Besancon in France and had not had to work. He had lived on nothing but biscuits and water for the first four weeks of his captivity. Later the French population had provided food for the 25,000 prisoners of this camp. Neither complained of bad treatment from their captors.

Serious observers can see only one possibility of the release of any large number of prisoners. If the time should come when the Germans want Laval swept back into power and with some popular support, something he has lacked entirely up to now, they might liberate some thousands of prisoners, taking care to see that a great propaganda campaign gave Laval all credit.

Under such conditions Laval's unpopularity might well change to popularity, because the depth of feeling on the prisoner question is something which cannot be overestimated. In the overwhelming joy of receiving back their husbands, sons and brothers, simple French families might not be too analytical of the motives of the man who obtained their liberation.

GALION— Youth in a Democracy'" was the subject of a talk by Professor Joseph Fichter of Miami university Oxford, who was a guest speaker at Monday night's meeting of the Galion Rotary club. club

There is a respect for the worth of every human being in a democracy. Fichter said In order to preserve a democracy, there must be an equal opportunity for everyone to earn a good livelihood, he continued Also, there must be the practice of practical Christianity.

The speaker pointed out that the present generation of American youth is the most free and independent of any generation in our history. For 25 years, he said, the school policies have been to give the children more freedom and encourage self expression

He said that now there is some conflict in the thinking of American people over whether or not youth have been given too much freedom and whether there should be a return to the old-fashioned discipline.

In many ways, he said, we are beginning to immitate the totalitarian countries. He pointed out that there has been much trouble because of dictatorial methods used on youth, and stressed the fact that there should be a continuance of present methods of giving youth freedom and individuality.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 22, 1941.

Mechanized barbarism is not civilization.

The government has "frozen" the price of steel—but nothing like that can be done with taxes.

Even after their recent agreement it still seems unlikely that Russia and Japan "understand" each other.

As local application of a "good neighbor" policy, the Toledo Blade suggests that folks stop throwing empty cans over the fence.

There Will Be Other Fires

THIS is the week that a special election should have been held in Mansfield on the proposal to issue bonds to modernize the city water supply system and replace obsolete fire-fighting equipment.

Today, in fact, would be the logical day for such an expression by voters, as even a few days may serve to restore the lethargic attitude which results in many people neglecting to vote at a special election and also lessens the concern which is felt for a few hours after a destructive fire like that of last Sunday night.

When it is considered that plants representing approximately 60 per cent of this city's industrial payroll were placed in jeopardy by the Sunday night fire, the need of "doing something about it" is better realized than by any facts and figures presented during a bond issue campaign.

Mansfield firemen are being highly commended for their efficient work in combatting the blaze and in preventing its spread to buildings in the immediate vicinity, all under the handicap of inadequate equipment, as was pointed out yesterday by Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton.

The roof-watching tactics, employed in England to prevent the spread of fires started by incendiary bombs, also become better understood after use of similar methods to quickly extinguish embers which the wind carried to roofs of factory buildings in the vicinity.

The advantage of thousands of people being attracted to a fire scene is that the impression thus gained is much more vivid than from reading, or hearsay, and there is at least a possibility that public interest can be sustained to the point of gaining sufficient support to put through a fire department rehabilitation program in the near future.

Coming as an inaugural to Mansfield's observance of Fire Prevention week, the Sunday night conflagration should at least be effective in concentrating attention on this subject throughout the week.

Task of the Free Powers

SINCE the Italians and Germans have tested their strength in the Balkan peninsula and north Africa, it is evident that Axis strength is not in superiority of personnel but merely superiority of numbers and equipment.

It seems a reasonable deduction from the campaign in Greece particularly that, fighting on equal terms, the forces of freedom would beat the forces of slavery. And that is what would be expected from a knowledge of human nature plus knowledge of racial stock.

The task, then, for the free powers, is to establish the "equal terms." Provide equal equipment and personnel for the champions of human liberty, and there need be no fear of the result.

This means primarily more shipping capacity. In the present stage it is ships, and the prevention of sinkings, more than anything else, that will win.

What School Girls Think

WHAT 323 Chicago high school girls think about this and that was discovered recently by the questionnaire method.

Their favorite person is President Roosevelt, with Mother second and Father third. A lot of other people receive a few votes as favorites, including the Duke of Windsor, Fred Snite, Joe Louis, Orson Welles and Dorothy Thompson. It must be admitted that the girls cover the field quite thoroughly.

When on a date the preferred entertainment is the movie. Dancing, parties, auto riding and "just talk" follow in that order and with rapidly diminishing support.

The "good mixer" is the kind of boy that 248 girls like best, while 261 believe that the girl a boy likes best is "a good sport." Most of them think a girl should get home from an ordinary date not later than midnight. Their reasons for wanting to go to college, in addition to the principal one of getting an education, are getting away from home, making new friends and "social reasons."

Except for its adjustment to the progress that has marked their generation, youthful thinking seems not greatly unlike that of their parents at the same age, nor can any dangerous trend be detected in the composite behavior of today's young people.

Warnings and Arrests

THE POLICY of state highway patrolmen in making arrests in some cases of traffic law violation and issuing warnings to other offending motorists, is a good one.

Something of this sort has been in vogue in some other states for a number of years, with satisfactory results in reducing the number of thoughtless offenses.

While any attempt to improve bad driving habits inside Mansfield city limits appears to have been at least temporarily abandoned by the local police department it may be hoped that this will eventually be resumed.

Meanwhile, it is interesting to note that, outside of the city, the state highway patrol is doing a good job along this line.

Cause for Justified Concern

SOME isolationists say people are cooling off about the war and taking it easier. A Washington columnist replies that this is certainly not so in the national capital. Officials who have direct access to the latest developments abroad are much worried.

It might be safe to add that well-informed people throughout the country, too, are worried now. It takes intelligence, imagination, and careful reading of the foreign news, to get a fairly clear idea of what is going on in Europe, Africa and Asia. But millions of Americans have these qualifications. And many citizens who say little about it may be wondering how long it would take a tidal wave of Allied defeat to break on our shores.

With Your Boots On

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

STRONG, reckless men had but one desire when I was a youngster on the Western frontier. They wished to die "with their boots on."

Once, sneaking under the swinging half door of Keenan's Golden Rule Saloon and peering between the elbows of a milling crowd, I saw a local hero whose wish had been granted.

He lay sprawled upon the floor—a great hairy, mountain of a man, his flaming beard still flecked from his last schooner of beer. Others were discussing the nicety of the shot that had laid him low, but my interest centered on his shoes. I had never been able to understand that craving to "die with my boots on."

What was there about boots—these, for instance? Dusty, shabby, knee-high affairs, scarred and stained by a hundred trails, scuffed at the toe and worn at the heel—why had he wanted to die in those?

It was many a year before I found the answer . . . but I came at last to see that only those who die with their boots on have really lived. To have lived with his boots on—that was the great point to the red-headed man. Death was only an incident.

He had always gone shod like that. Chosen boots instead of bedroom slippers or dancing pumps or neat standardized business shoes. And he had chosen the things that go with adventure—loneliness and danger, discomfort and hardship. For there was something in him that despised safety and dreaded comfort.

Above all he had chosen independence and action. He wanted to live while the living was good—to live constantly, every minute of the time, right up to the last thud—he wanted to live inside and out—to think his own thoughts, make his own decisions, run his own risks, take his own blame.

Perhaps some of his thoughts and decisions were far from admirable. He was, I guess, a pretty bad man, as we judge these things. But he'd lived. And he wouldn't wake up on the other side and cry, "Why didn't I take a chance?" And then cuss in his beard because he hadn't.

He had died—and he had lived—with his boots on. And the dust and the scars on those battered boots were, to him, marks of honorable venture. He'd have hated to have gone out with the bedclothes tucked neatly under his chin and his feet on a hot water bag.

Perhaps you condemn him, but many others have chosen to die—and to live—like that. They were not always to be found in mining camps. Some, through force of circumstances, spent all their days at quiet jobs on a humdrum street . . . Some sat in the difficult seats of the mighty. But they all lived and died with their boots on.

It wasn't easy. People called them fools—or worse. They could have had a much softer and more profitable time if they had been willing to compromise and alibi and evade, like more cautious folk. But they refused. They sent their soul out upon strange trails. They braved the danger and the dust. They were ready always to shoot it out with life on any issue. And they died in the thick of things with their traveling boots still on. Which seems to me a proud, free way to do.

Fire!

—By HELEN LOOMIS LINHAM

(Editor's Note — The following poem, inspired by scenes at Sunday night's destructive fire, is particularly appropriate to observance of Fire Prevention week.)

An arc of light in the eastern sky
Like the frantic burst of dawn;
Fire—warms the heart, we come to life,
For the day has long been done.

Get out your furs though you have them stored,
There's frost on the air this spring!
Tie back your curls with a silken scarf,
A muffler or anything.

To the east, to the east, half a league to the north,
Join in the rushing throng;
People and cars, and cars and people,
And a wind both bitter and strong.

Clean lumber piled as high as a house;
Fanned by a mighty breeze
Huge fiery tongues spit out their hate,
Singeing the blossomy trees.

A blast of winter to their flowery north,
Along the deep creek's way—
But awful tongues to the south of them—
Trees burn and bow and sway!

Trains scream and hiss and crawl along.
Even trains slow for this sight
Of fiery rain and hell cut loose
Spoiling the tranquil night.

Tall telephone poles weghed down with wires
Stand dumb to red-hot tongues
That spit at water playing there—
Smoke's bad for healthy lungs.

White smoke lacy and lovely to see:
Black smoke hugging the earth;
Though hot and cold the people say,
"What gave this fury birth?"

A dungeon of fire, a havoc of winds—
Bravely the fighters stand
On lumber piles, on roofs, on sheds
In this irate strange-lit land.

Hold your breath, I pray, stop shivering so,
Record this picture well:
The devil is showing the good townfolk
A very small corner of hell.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Weir Took Lead In Wage Raise, Doubled U.S. Steel's Proposal

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The CIO workers owe their spectacular wage-increase victory to a man who is one of their bitterest foes.

He is Ernest T. Weir, former treasurer of the Republican national committee and head of the Weirton Steel company, which is under charges before the National Labor Relations Board in the longest case on record. The story of how this militant anti-CIO battler broke the resistance to its wage demands is one of the most extraordinary in steel's turbulent history.

The Steel Workers Organizing Committee (CIO's steel union) aimed its first shaft at U. S. Steel, mighty giant of of industry, which has had a contract with the SWOC for several years. Theory behind the strategy was that once "Big Steel" came to terms, the others would have to fall into line.

In his first talk with U. S. Steel officials, Phil Murray mentioned no specific figure. The company officers indicated willingness to consider a pay readjustment and proposed a 5-cent an hour increase.

Meanwhile the CIO offensive had become hot on another front—the vast Ford plant in Detroit.

In the midst of this battle marchers suddenly appeared before Weir's unorganized plant bearing signs reading "Ernie, You're Next!"

Ten Cents From Ernie.

WEIR, of course, knew about the wage demand on U. S. Steel; and realized he would have to duplicate any increase it granted. Further, it was no secret to him that U. S. Steel was talking 5 cents. If he acted first and voluntarily granted a pay boost that topped the offer of his competitor, which had a union contract, the union would be at a disadvantage in trying to organize Weir's workers.

Weir acted. He announced a 10-cent an hour increase.

Privately, his fellow operators raged. But the shooting was all over. U. S. Steel, with a vast industrial empire branching into many lines, could not hold out for 5 cents when a competitor producing only steel declared he could afford to pay 10 cents. So Big Steel had to capitulate and the rest of the industry surrendered without SWOC having to fire a shot.

As Murray left the Pittsburgh conference, where U. S. Steel signed on the dotted line, one SWOC official remarked with a broad grin, "Phil, we'll have to give Weir membership card No. 1. He earned it."

Note—The day after the SWOC victory, Walter Tower, former head of the Iron and Steel Institute and dollar-a-year steel "expert" of OPM, told a private press conference that the wage boost would lead to an early increase in the price of steel. Certain high-cost mills would take the lead, he explained, and the others would follow.

Several hours later blunt-talking Defense Price Czar Leon Henderson issued his order freezing steel prices at their present levels. Henderson does his own "expert-ing."

Speaker's Trainer.

IF SPEAKER SAM RAYBURN doesn't keep in physical trim, it isn't the fault of Bob Johnson, Negro masseur in the house gymnasium.

Johnson, who hails from Mineral Springs, Texas, takes no chances on Rayburn. Twice a week, regular as clockwork, Johnson calls the speaker's office and notifies a secretary to get Mistah Rayburn over here quick so I can work on him."

There's no tone of polite suggestion in Johnson's voice. He orders. Within five or 10 minutes, Rayburn, grinning, shows up for his workout.

Two Worlds.

WALTER C. TEAGLE, Standard Oil executive who is one of the four employer representatives on the Defense Mediation Board, doesn't know the word fear." Dynamic and two-fisted, he has done business all over the world, under all sorts of conditions and with all sorts of people, and is at his best when the going is tough.

But he has one phobia. He can't stand the sight of a cage.

The other day, during a lull in a meeting on a defense strike, Vice-Chairman William H. Davis casually remarked that the national commander of the Knights Templar had been in Washington to participate in an Easter ceremony.

That couldn't happen in Germany," said Teagle.

Then he told about a Nazi parade he had witnessed in Berlin two years ago, in which a series of floats depicted German "strides" under Hitler. One float was composed of three cages. In the first was a figure representing union labor, in the second, a Jew, and in the third, a Mason.

"That was a perfect commentary on the difference between democracy and Nazism," observed Teagle. "Over here humans cage beasts. Over there beasts cage humans."

Shiny General.

NO PHASE of modern defensive warfare, in which attacking planes must be checked, is considered more vital than the art of camouflage. The British long ago learned that one effective protection against daytime bombing of an army in the field was to make sure no equipment reflects the sun. The U. S. army is following this same sound rule.

All glitter has been ordered removed from military equipment. Even bayonets are being dipped in a special blue finish to prevent shine. The dull surface of staff cars, troop transport trucks and other vehicles was designed to this end. It blends with the landscape and is a safeguard against air attacks.

However, one of the most eminent army brasshats, the commander of the vital link to our hemispheric defense, has other ideas. Lieutenant General Daniel Van Voorhis, 62-year-old commanding officer at the Panama Canal—"lifeline of the Americas"—still clings to old-fashioned ideas about military showiness.

Recently a consignment of staff cars was shipped to the Canal. Van Voorhis took one look at their dull olive finish and snorted, "Have 'em shined up!" Many hours of hard labor were spent by a polishing squad of privates before the cars met with the general's approval.

Note—Van Voorhis made the mistake of putting his "shine up" order in writing. A copy found its way to the war department and caused a lot of scowling, but so far the glitter-loving general has not been called down by the general staff.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — You may have come upon him at some sidewalk cafe in pre-war Budapest, or Vienna, or Paris, sipping coffee that had real cream in it, staring courteously at life that went on around him—a tall, thin, angular character out of a Somerset Maugham drama, or an Oppenheim novel.

You might even come upon him today in the lobby of a Manhattan hotel, a little embarrassed by all the press clippings that pay such flattering attention to his presence, a mature man and a sure man who is not at all surprised at the workmanlike job he has done in his newest assignment, yet mildly surprised at those who half expected him to achieve anything less.

HIS name is Paul Lukas. He was born on a railroad train. He is Hungarian and he saw World War No. 1 from the cockpits of numerous Hungarian fighter-planes and bombers. Now he is a distinguished American, bitterly anti-Nazi, fighting aggression with suitable and sizeable quantities of his income that bear the label of taxes.

An idea by Lillian Hellman and a purposeful journey by Herman Shumlin to the studio lots of Hollywood brought about Paul Lukas' second appearance under the proscenium of Broadway history.

This idea, snugly fitted into some of Miss Hellman's tighest dialogue, is a play, a thoughtful, serious anti-Nazi drama now discussed everywhere and known as "Watch on the Rhine." When Herman Shumlin, who produced it, first read the script he went at once to those film precincts on the West Coast, looking for Lukas, because Lukas seemed to him the only man who would fit perfectly the part. They returned together, and surrounded by Miss Hellman, the director and their cast, they went to work.

These rehearsal periods were interludes that were richly and warmly humanizing, for they defined Lukas as a man without ham or pretense. On stage, for instance, he wears a toupe. In Broadway parlance, a toupe is a "rug." In one of the tense, dramatic scenes of the play Lukas comes to grips with George Coulouris. "Suppose he knocks my 'rug' off," Lukas cried to Miss Hellman. "If he does your play is going to be known as the play with the flying toupe."

I said "on stage" he wears this rug. But only on stage. On the street, in cafes or in the hotels, he remains as bald and unadorned as God intended him to be.

ALTHOUGH he has no children of his own, he is wild about them, and visitors backstage at the Martin Beck are frequently puzzled by the confusion emanating from Lukas' dressing room. There are three kids in the play, each has an understudy. These six youngsters spend most of their spare time crawling over and around Lukas, preparing elaborate traps for him, and in general having a whale of a time. As a matter of fact, they no longer treat him as an adult, which, to Paul Lukas, is the ultimate compliment, for it means they accept him as one of them.

As a serious student of the theater, Lukas does not think much of the star system. In the continental system, you play the hero one night and the butler the next. "How can you become a well-rounded actor unless you play all the parts, and familiarize yourself with all the angles?" he asks.

Although he has spent years in America, the physical ease of life in this country continues to amaze him. And he still has difficulty with certain English words. When he was invited to appear as guest expert on Information Please he was genuinely alarmed, fearing he would be trapped into a bad situation. But his fears have been calmed.

A Farmer's Diary

An Orchard Dream

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WITHIN that selfsame hour that our trees arrived, I took the pliers and unwound the twisted ends of each band of wire, pried off the firmly nailed strip at each end and lifted up the broad top lid. The box was lined completely with rough strong paper. We pulled the covering back and found roots at each end, well packed with damp fine shavings.

At the middle part, where large and small tops were joined and interlapped, we saw far down the buds and bloom of peaches and nectarines, almost out. I left them packed and poured pond water down upon the roots—until next day, when the wind was high and I thought they might dry out.

Then, at evening, I unpacked the entire lot in the presence of four curious, inquiring boys. I noted carefully the labels on each well-tied bunch and ranged their roots in the water at the deep end of the pond. The entire breast was lined with promising, thrifty looking trees. Several times before I went to sleep I walked beyond the kitchen door to get another glimpse of the precious lot by moonlight.

Sleep came tardily. I visioned the plum and cherry trees we would plant in the newly-plowed garden and the line of late sour cherries at the northern edge of wheat. I thought of the ranks of peach and plum and pear that would grace the border of the pond and stream and the cluster that would grow in the south lawn between the pond and barn. I planned the little vineyard of grapes stretching eastward from the cottage.

I thought of the brambled hillside, so newly burned, where we soon will plant varieties of peach trees and in the fall, hardy pecans, English walnuts, improved black walnuts and large nutted shellbarks—in between the peaches, as orchardiste have frequently planted apple trees.

Time flies fast in dreams. Before I slept I had planted them, then seen them coming into leaf and waving in the wind like dark green plumes. The next year they wintered well and some bloomed copiously. In two more years where brush and brambles grew, the hill was gay with pink blossoms of many famous varieties of peaches. The entire west slope was a riot of enticing color. Magic fragrance floated on the sweet May wind.

I saw the peach trees grow old and one by one be taken out. But the sturdy, deep green nut trees stood and each year bore more fruit. Children of the neighborhood enjoyed with us the autumn nutting time. The fruitful slope was rest and peace for all who went that way.

'GLASS BOOT' IN USE DAILY AT HOSPITAL HERE

Device Just One of Many at Institution Getting Community Fund Aid.

(Editor's Note. Here is another in the series of articles describing little known activities of the agencies participating in the Mansfield Community Fund which opens its annual campaign April 28.)

Of the four departments in Mansfield General hospital, bed, X-ray, laboratory and pavax, the latter is the least known to the general public although it is in constant use.

Method of stimulating circulation in arms and limbs, the Pavax treatment machine, once popularly known as "the glass boot," is busy all day long, according to Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, hospital superintendent. It has been used four years by the hospital

One of the agencies participating in the Community Fund, the hospital, according to the superintendent, finds the average cost per patient is slowly raising due to increased laboratory diagnosis and the advance in medical science.

The average cost per patient in 1940 was $5.89, 11 cents higher than it was the previous year, hospital records reveal. Patients who pay less than this rate create a deficit that must be absorbed by individuals paying more than this sum and by the amount allocated by the Community Fund.

Although the yearly apportionment of the Community Fund to the hospital is not ear-marked, Dr Fonkalsrud pointed out that it approximates the operating cost of the emergency room

Into this room last year were brought 546 patients, some of them charity cases. Most of the patients were accident victims and the emergency room proved a life-saver in many instances.

The 180-bed institution had 4 648 bed patients last year and the total cost of operation was $231,205.49, approximately $32,000 higher than the year before

City and county funds pay for indigent cases contrary to the belief of some that the Community Fund covers these cases The city allows $4 25 per person per day.

The hospital maintains a free obstetrical clinic twice a month and has a low-cost plan for maternity casess Eight hundred and forty-one babies were born at the institution last year.

Operated on a non-profit basis the hospital will receive $5 350 from the Community Fund this year providing the goal of $64,375 is reached

Hospital policies are determined by a board of 15 trustees headed by Judge C H. Huston as president. Miss Mabel Selfe is superintendent of nurses.

Ward At Hospital, One Of Fund Agencies

Life in a hospital ward can be pleasant as the smiling patients indicate in the picture at the top Photographed at Mansfield General hospital which served 4,648 bed patients last year, the scene is typical of other wards An emergency room and pre-natal clinic are included among the departments of the local hospital which is one of the participating agencies of the Community Fund

Ex-Navy Man Protests 1-A Rating In Draft.

DETROIT —(AP)— Warren E Braschwitz, who completed a four-year training period in the navy just in time to register for the draft last October, has asked the U S district court here for a declaratory judgment on draft officials' insistence that he should be in class 1-A

Braschwitz contends that he has had sufficient military training and should not be called up for a year's army work in the light of his prior service.

The draft board said the fact that congress had exempted men trained in the army but had not mentioned persons with training in the navy or marine corps left it powerless to do anything other than call him for training when his low number comes up.

Braschwitz has asked the court to enjoin his draft board from calling him up until a judgment is given in his suit.

A GENERAL MOTORS MASTERPIECE

A COMPARISON of prices will show that the Pontiac De Luxe "Torpedo" does cost a little more than the de luxe models of the lowest-priced three. However, this difference itself is not important. In fact, it is so slight that owners say it's hardly noticeable when spread over monthly payments.

But the extra dependability this slight difference buys IS important—and in our files are hundreds of letters from owners indicating that the phrase—"Built to Last 100,000 Miles"—only begins to describe Pontiac's long life and trouble-free performance. And when you add the scores of other advantages Pontiac provides, plus the fact that Pontiac's great reputation for dependability means it's worth more to you at trade-in time, then you'll understand why more people are buying Pontiac this year than ever before. Why don't you see your Pontiac dealer today.

RECIPES LISTED FOR SESSION OF COOKING SCHOOL

First Day's Demonstrations Include Preparation of Steaks, Potatoes.

The following recipes were demonstrated and explained today at the opening of the four-day all-electric cooking school being staged this week at the Madison theater:

BROILED STEAKS AND GRILLED POTATOES

Season ground beef with salt and pepper to taste. Shape into thin patties, allowing two for each serving. Spread top of one patty with prepared mustard, a little horseradish and few finely chopped onions that have been sauted in butter. Place other patty on top. Spread surface with vegetable shortening before placing under broiler. Broil on both sides and serve piping hot. Potatoes may be grilled under broiler at same time. Slice cooked potatoes, season with salt and pepper and arrange on broiler pan. Spread with vegetable shortening. Place under broiler until delicate, even brown.

STUFFED ONION

Parboil large onions about 15 minutes. Remove center and fill with mixture of chopped apples, almonds and sausage in following proportions:

¼ cup sausage meat
½ cup chopped aples
2 tablesoons chopped almonds

Place in casserole and pour over them ¾ cup cider and bake until tender. A bit of butter may be placed on top of each.

PORCUPINE SALAD

Cut green peppers and celery into narrow strips about one-inch long and stick into peeled tomatoes (whole). Serve very cold on bed of endive or lettuce.

TOMATO FRENCH DRESSING

1 can tomato soup
¾ cup vinegar
1½ cups oil
¼ cup sugar
Juice of one lemon
1 teaspoon table sauce
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons mustard
Paprika to taste

Place all ingredients in food mixer bowl and beat until well blended. Store in refrigerator in quart jar.

CITRUS PIE

½ cup lemon sections
1½ cups orange sections
1 cup grapefruit sections
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons minute tapioca
¼ teaspoon salt

Peel fruit, cut down along membranes and lift out sections. Remove seeds. Add sugar and tapioca and pour into unbaked pie shell. This pie is attractive if top crust is made by cutting pastry with fancy cookie cutter and placing fancy shape top. Place in oven heated to 450 degrees F. and reduce to 425 degrees for forty to fifty minutes. Cool before serving. Make crust of orange pastry.

ORANGE PASTRY

2½ cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
⅔ cup shortening
5 tablespoons cold orange juice
1 tablespoon orange rind

Combine flour, salt, sugar and sift together. Add orange rind. Cut in half of shortening until mixture is like cornmeal, then cut in remainder until lumps are size of navy bean. Moisten with orange juice and roll out on pastry canvas.

MUSHROOM A LA KING

2 tablespoons shortening
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup top milk or chicken broth
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon chopped imento
3 or 4 chopped ripe olives
½ cup cut-up mushrooms

(either canned or fresh ones) that have been sauted in butter over low flame for 8 to 10 minutes.

Make cream sauce of first three ingredients and add remaining ingredients in order given.

GRANDMOTHER'S COOKIES

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup molasses
2 cups All-Bran
½ cup finely chopped nut meats
5 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon ginger
⅔ cup water

Blend shortening and sugar gradually. Combine soda with molasses and add to first mixture; beat well. Add All-Bran and nut meats. Sift flour with baking powder, salt, cinnamon, cloves and ginger and add to creamed mixture alternately with water. Chill thoroughly. Roll dough to about one-eighth inch thickness and cut with cookie cutter. Place raisins or small amount of jelly in center if desired. Bake in moderately hot oven 400 F. for 10 minutes.

Yield: 5 dozen 3½ inches in diameter.

CRISS-CROSS TOASTED CHEESE SANDWICH

Cut sharp cheese in narrow strips, arrange strips on bread in waffle design. Place under broiler until delicate brown.

PAN-COAT

½ cup shortening
¼ cup flour

Mix shortening with flour to form a smooth mixture. Keep pan-coat in a covered dish on the pantry shelf. It will stay sweet and fresh indefinitely. Use for greasing cake pans, muffin pans, etc.

PASTRY MIX

A Spry Kitchen Recipe

3½ pounds (14 cups sifted) flour
2 tablespoons salt
2 pounds (4¾ cups) shortening

Sift flour and salt together into a large bowl. Add 1 pound shortening to flour and cut in until mixture is as fine as meal. Add remaining 1 pound shortening and continue cutting until particles are size of a navy bean. Put pastry mix in a covered container and store on the pantry shelf or in the cupboard for use as needed. Do not keep mix in the refrigerator—it will keep sweet and fresh at room temperature. Use Pastry mix as needed in all kinds of pastry, such as pies, tarts, patty shells, meat pies, etc. This amount of pastry mix will make eleven one-crust pies, six two crust pies and one one-crust pie or six and a half dozen three-inch tarts or patties.

Plaque Remains As School Garden Contest Award

Mansfield schools participating in the annual Garden club contest will compete for a plaque again this year and not for a live tree as previously announced.

Rescinding its action taken several weeks ago, the board of education last night restored the plaque as a prize for one more year, or until a school wins it three times.

Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller explained that a flowering tree was offered as a prize to the winning school when it was believed the Prospect school had won permanent possession of the Garden club's plaque last year.

It was learned later, however, that the Prospect school won the plaque only twice and must win again this year to gain permanent possession of it.

The plaque will go to the school with the largest number of pupils completing their garden projects this summer. Pupils will also compete for individual cash prizes.

As Women Gathered For Cooking School

Mansfield women left their homes early this morning to attend The Mansfield News-Journal all-electric cooking school at the Madison theater. Approximately 800 women were in the audience when Mrs. Mabel B. Bowen, food and household expert, began her demonstration. Part of the audience intent upon Mrs. Bowen's lecture is shown in the above picture while below Mrs. Bowen is shown in the midst of her demonstration. Mrs. Bowen is pictured right and her assistant, Miss Marie Mohler, left. The school continues each morning through Friday.

BOARD EXTENDS CLASSES IN DEFENSE TRAINING 13 WEEKS

Extending the defense training courses at Senior high school for another 13-weeks period, the Mansfield school board last night employed a staff of 23 instructors, clerks, shop attendants, including three new instructors, to conduct the classes.

V. H. Oberlander was re-employed to continue supervision of the training which is paid for by the federal government.

New instructors are K. E. McDaniel, P. R. Blunk, and H. S. Hostetler. They will teach automotive and general metal work and woodworking in special defense classes at the Rocky Fork CCC camp southeast of the city, receiving $1.50 an hour for classes three nights a week.

Other instructors who were re-employed at $1.50 and $1.60 an hour include R. W. Worley, J. P. O'Brien, E. A. Wiener, Charles McClure, A. T. Owen, R. D. Schaaf, A. G. Naus, James Herlihy, W. B. Blank and R. O. McFarland.

Re-employed as clerks were Shirley Perrine and Jean Wells, while toolroom attendants are Anton Erndt, Earl Brinley, Charles Daugherty, Harold Leicy and William Reece. Janitors are George Mitchell and Charles Birmelin.

The board approved establishing of a trade extension class in blueprinting and drawing. R. O. McFarland will be the instructor. The class will be conducted on a tuition basis, Supt. W. L. Miller, said.

FARMERS WAIT WOOL ORDERS

County Agent Says Government to Announce Requirements for Defense Soon.

With Richland county sheep growers in the midst of their wool marketing for the year, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today the federal government will soon announce its wool requirements for the year so growers will not be "in the dark" in selling their wool.

It is expected that a heavy demand for wool for army uniforms and defense equipment will boost the price of wool, and the government's announcement is intended to protect the farmer from unexpected price fluctuations, the county agent said.

He pointed out that the sale of wool and sheep provided about eight per cent of Richland county farmers' annual income.

Officials of the federal division of purchases will confer with wool growers' representatives and will agree with them on a method of determining a fair price for domestic wool at the time bids are being placed for it, the division of purchases announced.

"Growers have felt that if the government places its orders after the wool clip has been marketed, the grower does not get the benefit he should from the government program," Director D. M. Nelson of the division of purchases said.

RESERVE SEAMEN LEARN ORDERS

EL PASO, Tex.—(UP)—C. S. Holloway, member of the naval reserve, was unaware of the duties of reserve seamen.

He received a letter instructing him to report to the Navy Communications School at Charleston, S. C. He disregarded the letter.

Weeks later he received a terse wire repeating the order. Holloway began investigating and found he was bound to report.

"I thought it was optional," he said.

WOMEN JOIN ARMY

BERN, Switzerland—(U.P.)—For the first time in the history of this country, Swiss women are being trained as auxiliary soldiers. Hundreds answered the first call for volunteers for A. R. P., nursing and transport work.

TAKE PART

Senior High Pupils Entered In Drama, Speech Contest.

Mansfield Senior high school pupils will take part in a radio drama and speech contest at Cleveland station WTAM Friday and Saturday, according to W. W. Mickey, instructor in speech activity at the high school.

Ellen Ann Smith will compete in the extemporaneous division of the contest, while 14 pupils will be members of the cast which will present "November's Child", a dramatization of the life of Louisa Mae Alcott.

Members of the cast are: William Dietrichson, Clara Beer, Jean Herring, Lynn McCorquodale, Richard Perez, Wanda Hess, Athena Poulos, Judson Dolle, Lois Wappner, Edward Fisher, Betty Bolesky, Betty Underwood, Bud Miller, and David Talbot.

The general topic for the extemporaneous contest will be "Senators at Large." A specific topic will be chosen from the general classification at the contest.

SET HEARING

Commissioners Consider Vacation of Alley In Bell Heights.

County commissioners today had set May 7 for the final hearing on the proposed abandonment of an alley in the Bell Heights allotment northeast of the city.

Commissioners said the alley serves only one property owner and does not connect with any main thoroughfare. Commissioners will view the alley April 30.

RAZE POLES

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Two flagpoles on the County Hall grounds from which the Stars and Stripes floated at half-mast after the assassination of President McKinley here and after the death of President Cleveland, a Buffalo mayor who rose to the presidency, have been removed.

The poles had stood in front of the county building since its erection 68 years ago. They had decayed and it was feared they might break.

CHAPTER XXXII.

"He can tell Karl almost anything tonight. Karl won't have a chance to find out before help comes whether it's true or not. And tomorrow we should be out of here."

But Joan's uneasy feeling prevailed long after she heard Sybil's regular breathing at her side. Moving cautiously so as not to disturb her sister, she slipped into her coat and went into the living room.

"So you can't sleep either," Thomas said.

"No. I wish I knew what was going on. I'm so worried about Paul. Karl might do anything if his suspicions are aroused.

"Not to Paul. He's too valuable to Karl at this point." Thomas pulled back the curtain and looked out. "The house is dark now. They've gone to bed."

"Then nothing more can happen tonight, at least!"

"No. I guess there's no use staying up."

But he had scarcely uttered the words when there was a sound outside.

"What's that?" Joan cried, stepping back.

Thomas stood motionless, listening. The sound came again, followed by a soft clicking noise at the door. Joan extinguished the light. The door slowly opened and a figure entered.

"Paul!" Joan said in a tone whisper, reaching for the light switch.

"Don't turn on the lights!" Paul commanded. His flashlight broke through the shadowy night.

"Well, they've come! Sooner than I expected, but I think we can make it."

"You mean help has come! But where?" Joan cried in amazement.

A plane, several miles from here. Apparently they landed a few hours ago. They'll meet us down the road with a car and take us to the plane."

Curiosity and admiration shone in Thomas's face. "But how did you know they were here?"

"One of the men came here and left a signal. We agreed upon it in advance. We use it frequently."

"You mean he was here and Karl didn't know?"

"That's right. Some of the others probably overcame the guards down by the fence, so he could get through to the house. He left this signal in the path between the houses." He held something in his hand.

"Why, it's a package of matches!" Joan cried in surprise.

Paul smiled. "Small but significent. They are from a hotel in Washington, D. C. I saw them lying in the path when I left here this evening and I knew that they were here. Now listen to me very carefully. I want you to go out through the bedroom window and straight down the road to the gate. There's nothing to be afraid of. All the guards are out of the way. I'll meet you at the gate."

"You're not going back to that other house now?" Joan asked.

"I've got to, honey! There are some papers I want to get."

"But Karl and Mr. Mulford will hear you!"

"Karl and Mulford are out like a light," Paul said. "I put a couple of sleeping powders in their drinks. They won't come to for awhile!"

As Paul slipped noiselessly back to the other house, Joan went into the bedroom to rouse Sybil.

"Syb," she cried excitedly, "they've come for us! Get up! Put on your clothes! We've got to go right now."

Instantly Sybil was awake. "What's happened?" she demanded.

Joan hurriedly slipped into her dress and handed her sister her clothes. "There's a plane waiting for us. The guards at the gate are prisoners and Karl and Mulford are drugged. We're going the back way, through this window. Paul will meet us and we'll be driven to the plane."

The small house was directly behind the larger one and no one could see the three figures as they went down the road. It was some distance to the gate but none of them dared to speak until they reached it. Paul was waiting. There were two other men with him.

"This way," he said, taking the girls by the arm and leading them to an automobile.

The other men stayed at the gate. Joan saw that they had pistols and two machine guns. She and Sybil climbed into the car, followed by Paul and Thomas.

"Won't someone hear the car?" Sybil asked.

"It won't matter. The place is surrounded," Paul told her.

Joan was surprised to find that there were three planes instead of one. Without commenting, Paul herded the girls and Thomas into one of them.

"Happy landing!" he called. "I'll be in San Francisco tomorrow night."

"You're not coming with us?" Joan cried in alarm.

"My job here isn't done yet," he reminded her. "Don't worry, honey," he added as tears filled her eyes. "We'll round up the whole bunch and it will be all over for good." He thrust some papers into her hand. "Give these to Scot Reynolds. He'll meet you at the airport and take care of everything. Good-bye, darling!"

Joan choked back her tears but as Paul closed the door she fell weeping into Sybil's arms. "He'll be killed!"

"No he won't," her sister comforted. "You forget that this is Paul's business. He knows how to take care of himself."

The plane gathered speed and rose into the air.

"We're safe!" Thomas cried. "Do you know what that means to me? I'm safe from Karl Miller! I can live again. I'm free!"

There were tears in his sad, blue eyes. Joan forgot her own troubles and patted his hand. "Of course you are. And when we get back to the city we'll find a job for you."

The three of them were weak from fatigue and the reaction from tense anxiety when they reached San Francisco six hours later. At the airport they were met by Scot Reynolds. Joan gave him the papers.

"I have orders from Mr. O'Malley," he said pleasantly. "I'll take Thomas to a hotel and you girls are to go back to your apartment."

He had his own car and drove them there himself.

"Imagine still having our apartment!" Sybil said as they went into the familiar rooms. "Who paid the rent?"

Joan remembered Pat. "Paul's sister was living with me. She probably took care of it. I wonder where she is now." She ran into the bedroom but none of Pat's clothes were there. Paul had suspected Mrs. Murdock, but Scot Reynolds had said nothing about Pat. Surely, if she were in trouble, he would have known it.

Too tired to think or even speculate, the girls undressed and went to bed. The first rays of the cold winter sun were just creeping over the city.

It was 4 in the afternoon when Joan awoke. She sat up in bed and yawned luxuriously. How good it was to be home. To go into the little kitchen and prepare coffee. To see Sybil's blond head on its usual place on the pillow. And tonight Paul would come!

* * *

It was a real thrill to discard the black wool dress she had worn ever since the night Karl surprised her and Paul in the beauty shop's secret room—to put on a soft gray crepe with matching turban—to take a taxi to the nearest beauty shop—to have her hair set in fresh shining waves—to have her fingernails shaped back into brightly polished ovals. She had a facial, too, delighting in the efficient message that made her skin glow

It was 7:30 when she got back to the apartment.

"You look like a new woman," Sybil commented.

"I see you've been at it, too," Joan replied with a smile, noticing that each of Sybil's blond curls was in its proper place and that a fresh coat of rosy polish covered her long nails. "I hope you didn't go to the Ritz."

"It's closed," Sybil said. "I went by there. That proves that they must have caught up with Mrs. Murdock. By the way, Scot Reynolds was here. He's going to take us all out to dinner. Wants us to meet him downtown and afterward we'll go to the airport. Paul's plane is due at 9:30.

"How wonderful! Syb, I'm so happy I can't believe it! Things just couldn't have worked out better. It's restored my faith in everything."

They smiled at each other affectionately and after a moment Sybil said, "Do you believe in love at first sight?"

"Why, Syb! What are you talking about? You don't mean Thomas?"

"Of course not. It's Scot Reynolds, Paul's friend."

Joan remembered his laughing blue eyes and crisp blond hair.

"I think he likes me too," Sybil continued self-consciously. "You'll probably think I'm crazy, Joan. You know I haven't had any faith in love since my divorce . . ."

"Maybe it's time you started to believe in things again," Joan said as she drew her arm through her sister's. "And now we'd better call a taxi. Scot will be waiting."

PREFER COTTON.

With an eye on National Baby Week (April 28th to May 3rd), the Cotton-Textile Institute suggests a layette made entirely of cotton, the fabric approved by the medical profession because its absorbency helps to prevent colds and skin chafing and because it allows circulation of air so essential to proper skin care.

A model layette prepared by the Institute consists of 20 items: nainsook dress, Curity cheesecloth dress and petticoat, flannelette dress and petticoat, knitted nightie slip-on knitted shirt, terry bib, knitted diaper, birdseye diaper, double Curity cloth diaper, Curity layette-cloth mat, knitted wash cloth and face towel, bath blanket of terry and knit, crib sheet, crib blanket and Curity cheesecloth baby puff.

COTTON BLANKETS.

As we enter the season when lighter bedcovers are needed, the Cotton-Textile Institute reminds us that cotton blankets are ideal for Summer use; shrink less than wool, are less expensive, wear longer.

The institute suggests that the following points be kept in mind when shopping for cotton blankets:

1. Test the durability of the nap by pulling at it gently. A good nap is held firmly in the blanket while a poor nap pulls out easily.

2. Choose the size carefully. For maximum comfort and longer wear, a blanket should be at least 10 inches longer and 18 inches wider than the matress. For a single bed, the blanket should be at least 60x84 inches; for a three-quarter bed, 66x84 inches; for a double bed, 72x84 inches.

3. Look at the binding. It should be of good quality and attached with two or three rows of stitching. The edges should be folded under and securely fastened. Cotton sateen binding usually wears longer than silk or rayon.

Care of Blankets.

Launder cotton blankets in warm soft water in which a mild soap has been dissolved and squeeze the blanket gently until clean. Rinse through several changes of warm water until the rinse is clear; then press out the water as lightly as possible and hang in the shade to dry. When dry, the binding should be dampened and pressed with a warm iron and the nap should be brushed up gently.

Formal Wedding To Be Held At Leland Hotel

Invitations have been issued for the formal wedding ceremony for Miss Rosalind Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Morgan, of Galion, and Herman J. Grossman, son of Mrs. Isaac Grossman, of Muskegon, Mich. The wedding will be solemnized at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel with Rabbi Charles A. Latz of Canton officiating.

More than 300 guests will attend the nuptials which will be preceded by a formal dinner at 4 p. m. in the ballroom where covers will be laid for 70 friends and relatives.

Miss Morgan has chosen for her attendants, Miss Sylvia Frankel of Mansfield, as maid of honor, Misses Minerva and Shirley Grossman of Muskegon, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Frances Bernard of Galian, bridesmaids. Eugene Glickman of Chicago will be best man.

The bride-elect was graduated from Galion high school and from Ohio State university. Before she announced her engagement and approaching marriage several weeks ago, she was assistant buyer at Mandel Brothers, Chicago. Mr. Grossman is merchandise manager of the Grossman department store in Moskegon. He attended the University of Michigan and was graduated from the University of Chicago and studied law at Harvard.

Adviser Disagrees With Survey

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It seems, if anything remains after blaming Hitler, Himmler, Goebbels, Goering for present-day world madness, they blame the leftovers on the motion pictures.

Why do girls leave home? Influence of motion pictures.

Why do aged husbands and wives see affinities in the youngsters who come to visit their sons and daughters. The absurd attraction is attributed to motion pictures.

Why do wives despise their humble home and imagine if they'd got their just dues they'd be dwelling in marble halls? Moving pictures.

Why do young men get in financial troubles and go to jail after studying the high finance antics of glamour boys on the screen? Motion pictures.

Perhaps the movies may be responsible for a trace of dissatisfaction with the two-room, kitchenette and bath. Or the little woman, after seeing and hearing Charles Boyer or Robert Taylor make love, may feel that the gentleman she accepted for better or for worse has a good deal to learn in the gentle art of love-making. But not all the sins in the decalogue can be laid at the door of the flickers.

Now along comes the American Association of School Administrators with a study of relations between school, family life and the child. Among their findings is that "exaggerated ideas of romance, which obstruct good preparation for marriage, are blamed on motion pictures. Much false teaching may be traced to the movies," says the Association, "because box-office appeal outweighs any tendencies toward presentation of normal family life."

I wonder! Because more than half of the letters which come to this column are not from girls who crave walking down the marble staircase of some synthetic palace to the Apollo waiting among the expensive rugs and bric-a-brac on the floor below, my correspondents want to know how they can make it perfectly plain to the favored boy friend that they are more than willing to take over the responsibilities of a walk-up, cold-water flat on the third floor of a grim apartment house.

The worthy educators recommend red hands, not lips, and especially not slaughter-house fingernails. Less glamour and more dish-washing is what they have recommended after their extensive two-year study of conditions.

They have decided also that happier families would result from more education within the responsibilities of future wives and mothers. "Something in elementary education might help prepare girls to be happy in home-making. Instead of wondering how soon after the marriage ceremony they can get back to the old job." The report says further: "Education for girls has perhaps been pointed too much toward careers in lines other than that of home-making."

As far as home-making is concerned, you've got to be invited to help make the home. And that seems to be the headache of a good many of the girls who write me letters. The boys don't come across with an invitation to collaborate in home-making. When they do invite someone to share the home, it's not the girl whose hands are red from dish-washing, but the one who has the longest and reddest fingernails, with lipsticks to match, the highest heels, and most diaphanous gowns and all sorts of fol de dols. The sensible girl is left to sit it out at dances.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Do you expect me to arrive dangerously at the Lansfield?" I countered, realizing how absurd was the retort, but so keyed up by the realization of the danger I must soon face alone, and by my determination that Dicky must know nothing about it, that I was ready to babble anything to hide my inward uneasiness.

"Light of my Life!" he apostrophized me elaborately. "I never expect you to arrive anywhere safely. It simply isn't in you. I put the word in my adjuration—and that's a 25-cent word, I'll have you know—solely as a sop to Fate, and with the dim hope never yet realized, that for my sake, and the sake of your in-no-cent cheel-dren, you might use a little caution when you get into the great city and before."

Now what did he mean by that, I wondered, but did not put my query into words. Instead, I gave him a flippant promise.

"I shall follow faithfully the example of the old lady who refused a policeman's injunction to cross a street until he could assure her she would have time to fall down twice," I assured him.

A Brusque Departure.

"And I've heard you spring that one before," he retorted.

"There's the train!" I exclaimed, ignoring the gibe, and Dicky alighted from the car, took our my bags, helped me out, locked the car door and pocketed the key with a nervous haste that puzzled me.

"Come along!" he adjured me, shifting both small bags to one head, and slipping the other beneath my elbow. Then he rushed me to the train, almost lifted me aboard bodily, and hurried me to the compartment he had previously reserved for me, as if, I told myself wonderingly, a thousand devils were after him.

"So long, old dear!" he said as he lifted his head. "Be careful!"

He was gone upon the injunction, and I settled myself in my seat, bewildered by his brusqueness, but giving myself no time to ponder it.

As Dicky rushed me to the steps of my car, I had managed a quick comprehensive glance at the rest of the train, and had seen Carolyn's "gangster boy friend" as Dicky dubbed him, entering the car next to mine. When I remembered that he had tried to get my compartment number from Carolyn, and realized that he no doubt had seen me entering the train, I reasoned that it would not be very long before he would come and try to get from me the letter to Ronald from Marion.

The Letter!

An icy little shudder ran over me as I realized his reason for wanting that letter. He wanted proof of Marion's "perfidy"—as he probably would call it to his organization and the corallary to that thought was that Lillian's brave but misguided daughter was pretending loyalty to his gang of desperadoes in order to accomplish some end as yet unknown to us.

At another corollary I did not dare to look—and that was the fate which would overtake Marion if this gangster, on the train should get her letter.

Mary also would be in danger, I knew, for these men were of the type that let nothing stand in their way, and though they did not need the code for knowledge of Marion's whereabouts, they no doubt did want it in order to find out to what degree their captive had "double-crossed" them, and to measure the punishment she should receive.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 23.

A day of astrological "mixed influences" may be read from the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects, with some very auspicious conditions offset by sudden upsets, changes and much indecision. It may be difficult to come to definite conclusions as the mind is not only erratic but confused. With much restraint and forethought it may be possible to choose the gainful situation, particularly in all pertaining to public, group or social welfare. Be alert to deception.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year in which their own vigilance, sagacity and acumen may be responsible for eluding danger and loss through duplicity, treachery and possible sharp practice. The situation may be beset by confusion, while the mentality moves in impetuous or erratic grooves. But public work of any nature should flourish, especially in matters concerning social welfare or humanitarian movements.

A child born on this day should have many original views and talents, while having some confused or eccentric ideas or emotional impulses. Its signal success will be made in public or community work, as its gifts are for social uplift or service. It may have much personal charm and influence.

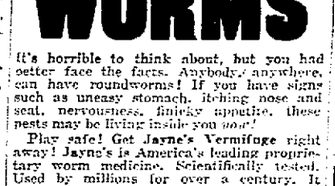
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

LEAD DIRECTING BIDS

One device developed in the days of auction bridge is still of value in contract, sometimes of more value than in the older game. That is the lead-directing bid. Usually it comes after your partner has passed, thereby indicating a possible lack of important defensive strength, and the intervening opponent had then bid a minor suit. With the likelihood of a No Trump game in the offing, your suit bid may scare them away from one they could make if some other suit than yours got led. If they do go ahead and chance it, you partner should usually minimize their chances by leading your suit.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♠	1 ♥	2 ♣
2 ♥	2 ♠	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT

What a difference in result there was at two duplicate tables where that bidding was done. In one case North was frightened out of leading his partner's suit, explaining later that he thought West must have it securely stopped, and therefore the best thing was to lead the second suit bid by dummy, so as to knock out any side entries for the first. He used this reasoning to prescribe a lead of the spade 2. The A won it, the diamond A was laid down and then a small diamond for North to win. Now, too late, the latter led his heart 4 to the A, and West then won the heart Q with his K. Blithely running off tricks then, he totaled four in diamonds, four in spades, one in hearts and two in clubs, making his contract plus two overtricks.

At the other table, North led his heart 4 to the A, and the Q knocked out the K. West proceeded to run a total of eight tricks, but as soon as he then lost one, the defenders finished with hearts, setting him one, solely because North obeyed the lead-directing bid.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If North opens this deal with 1-Diamond and East doubles, why should South not redouble? What should he do?

The puzzle of the animal world is the platypus. It swims and walks but cannot fly, lays eggs but suckles its young, swims with its front feet but the male has poisoned spurs on his hind legs. It has a duck-like bill, webbed feet and a fur coat.

Healthy Girl Has Good Appetite

By MME. QUI VIVE.

Smart clothes, snappy coiffures, lipstick, nail polish and all the trappings that make a woman attractive to the eye appeal to the feminine heart. We love them, have to have them. But some of our small-salaried career girls get them at the expense of health. They save on food to buy expensive cosmetics which, if they are undernourished, do them no good at all. Undernourishment brings on a nervous state that plays havoc with the appetite. The job is imperiled. Efficiency is lessened. Don't be penny wise and pound foolish.

Bad eating habits, hurried eating, food that does little good—results in malnutrition, which has a depressing effect upon every cell of the body. Emaciation removed the pleasing normal curves, collar bones pop out. Hair lacks luster, finger nails become brittle, almost anything can happen to the complexion. Nervous breakdowns often result because there is not sufficient energy to get one through the day's work, and fatigue becomes almost unbearable.

A young woman who has got herself into this condition should concentrate her mind on appetizing food, indulge herself. At first she may be interested only in light broths and gren salads. She revolts against the more solid foods. She must coax back the appetite if she is to carry on as a strong, healthy girl should.

Breakfast should include fruit, cereal, a few slices of bacon or an egg. At first she won't be able to bear the sight of that much food. But if she beats it out early to the job she needs it. It's a long time since dinner the night before, and she must stoke up. She should drink a quart of milk a day; milk contains almost all the food elements that the body needs.

Poorly cooked food destroys appetite. Cooking is not the fine art that it should be. The noble housewife who finds cooking an interesting occupation, who gives her family a varied diet, always daintily served, will have a family that is not only healthy but also happy. The commissary department is all important.

Let the girl who nibbles, who lives on a couple of lettuce leaves a day, take a hint from the modern system of baby feeding, which has developed youngsters so intelligent and highly energized that it is almost impossible to live in the same house with them. Look at the strapping, husky high school girls. Vitamin babies, all of them. They got the right start. Blessed with vitality, they are less exposed to illness than the poor eater who has practically no resistance when germs and germesses get a toehold in her frail anatomy.

Eating should be a pleasure. Eyes, nose and taste should respond to the good things of the table. The woman who eats because she has to is seldom in normal spirits.

The Banff and Jasper National Parks in the Province of Alberta have been connected by a 186-mile highway.

Study Extending Army Training Period

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(The things you think about ambling along the Great White Way.)

TAXICABS lined up along the curbs in the forties are so gay, especially the new canary-yellow ones with the cyclamen tops. No wonder New Yorkers, when they are out of town, miss the chubby big city cabs that float around our streets like balloon-tired ocean liners.

Manhattan taxis are to most out-of-town cabs what Hedy LaMarr is to "Grandmaw" in "Tobacco Road" . . . Wonder if there was ever a star in the theater as versatile as Gertrude Lawrence . . . I'd like to meet the artist who does the posters for the Astor lobby.

* * *

Maxie Rosenbloom, the Gargantua of the Glamor Boys, slays me. I watched him rehearse with songstress Marie Spaulding at Leon and Eddie's yesterday. To put her at ease, he told her:

"Honey, you can have anything my heart desires."

When the bandleader asked Maxie for the trombone part to an orchestration the enchanting mugg said:

"What's a trombone—a saxophone?"

Those animated electric signs are getting more and more complicated. I wish they had music to them, somehow. It's a little like watching a film with the sound track missing. Unless you count what Cole Porter calls the roaring traffic's boom.

* * *

I think baseball fans who bawl out the umpires are the same people who talk back to their radios . . . If I were in a plane and had to use a parachute, I think someone would have to push me out. I could never try parachuting just for the thrill. Not after that World's Fair ride . . . Wonder what makes people become tight rope walkers or jugglers? . . . I want to see the circus again . . .

* * *

There's nothing more exciting than a wet fresh black headline on a newspaper. I can't pass a corner news stand without craning . . . I'm fond of flowers but I've never been a window-box tender. Never had time to struggle with gardenia plants . . .

I love the way William Saroyan always takes a window table in the Automat. So he can see life go by, I suppose. Or maybe so life going by can see him. . . .

Optimistic note: I haven't seen a drunk in a night club in weeks.

Oh, Spring is here, all right! The boys are breaking out in those powder-blue suits again . . . You always think of Broadway turning midnight into noon, but there's one spot on Broadway that turns noon into midnight—the Taft Hotel's Grill.

This is the one place where the tired business man can come for lunch and a couple of rhumbas to Frankie Master's band, with no snooping columnist around to report that his dancing partner is his secretary . . .

Because columnists aren't abroad that early.

Sometime I'd like to eavesdrop in a barber shop, to see if the chit-chat in a hot-towel-and-lather salon is half as gossipy as the tattling that goes on in a beauty parlor.

Question most often heard on Broadway (and in Kankakee, too, I suppose) is: "Where are you in the draft?"

* * *

I can't stop thinking of those marionettes at the Rainbow romo, they're so wonderful. I never before saw puppets with moveable features—and the Hawaiian gal who does the bumps! I'll bet she has stage door Johnnies trying to date her . . . I think the most harrowing thing that can happen to a girl is to be shown a picture of herself taken in 1928. Those clothes! . . .

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's funny what going to the movies does to a person.

Me, now, I've gotten so I can't meet a sweet Little Old Lady any more without waiting for her to go into her flash-back act.

ROBBIN COONS

She seldom does. Never, in fact, has one cornered me, settled herself comfortably in her rocker for seven or eight reels, and begun: "It was a long time ago, my boy, when the west was wild and men were men—and I was the loveliest flower of the prairies, if I do say so myself . . ." (Business of gazing dreamily into space, while the Little Old Lady, her rocker and the whole scene dissolves into a long shot of the west being wild, of men being men, of the prairie flower blooming.)

The Little Old Ladies I meet must not go to the movies often. If they did, they'd know that every L. O. L. who wants to be in style must carry her flash-back with her at all times, ready to spring it on stranger and friend alike.

That's how they are in the movies. Here's L. O. L. Barbara Stanwyck playing "The Great Man's Lady," and she's practically all flash-back. Considering that she's a centenarian when the movie opens, she has a lot of flashing-back to cover, but she does it with a will, only occasionally returning (maybe to catch her breath) to the present.

L. O. L. Martha Scott had so much practice skipping around in "Our Town"—going to the altar before she was engaged, celebrating her twelfth birthday on her deathbed, and so on—that she was an old hand at it for "Cheers for Miss Bishop."

L. O. L. Jeanette MacDonald, a veteran flash-backer after "Maytime," tried it again in "Bittersweet" but somebody discovered in time that the aged heroine was looking back on practically the same story she had told in "Maytime." They forthwith chopped out the prologue and epilogue, thus improving the film — but somewhat less than they could have by chopping out the intervening reels as well.

RETIRED BREWER DIES

LIMA, O.—(AP)—C. T. Kolter, 83, retired president of the Wapakoneta City Brewing company, and a former city councilman there, died today.

FIRES CONTINUE TO CRACKLE IN PARCHED WOODS

100,000 Acres of Forest Land In 13 States Laid Waste as Blazes Rage On.

More than 100,000 acres of woodlands in 13 states were blackened wastes today and fires still burned through parched forests.

The eastern seaboard bore the brunt of roaring flames that leaped crazily across highways and streams and wrought great damage in New Jersey and Massachusetts.

The Massachusetts executive council, in emergency session last night, closed the Bay State's forests after some 30 major blazes destroyed much timberland and consumed 450 seaside homes at Marshfield.

Parts of New Hampshire, Vermont and Connecticut were also ravaged.

Scattered sections of South and Central New Jersey were licked by swiftly-moving fires that burned 42,500 acres in that state and caused property damage of more than $1,000,000.

Eighty Fort Dix soldiers in a detachment of 5,000 assigned to fire duty in New Jersey narrowly escaped yesterday when state fire service airplanes dropped notes charting the way to safety from an encircling ring of fire near Pinehurst.

Fire threatened the U. S. naval air station at Lakehurst and the borough of that name, but was repulsed.

Nearly 100 blazes were reported in New York and Pennsylvania.

To the couth, 12,000 acres in Maryland still smoldered, and small new blazes sprang up throughout the state. Virginia and West Virginia experienced scores of major fires.

A third of West Virginia's more than 150 conflagrations were being fought by 3,000 men, and State Forester Dan B. Griffin predicted the worst was yet to come.

Tennessee was hit, and in the Carolinas a fire with a front of 9.4 miles crossed from South to North Carolina into Henderson county, charring some 400 acres.

DIES IN WEST

Mrs. Minnie Wade, 85, To Be Buried Here Saturday.

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie Hubbel Geddes Wade, 85, who died at her home in Hollywood, Calif., Saturday, will be held at Mansfield cemetery Saturday at 2 p. m. Rev. Edwin Corwin, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church will officiate.

Mrs. Wade, a former resident of Mansfield, is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Dolly Geddes, of Hollywood, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. F. Cowan, of Berkley, Calif.

Also surviving are one nephew, Don Hubel and one niece, Mary Hubbel, both of Columbus, and a number of relatives in this city.

FACES COURT ON MURDER CHARGE

Former OSR Inmate, Accused of Putting Body in Furnace, To Enter Plea.

Albert Lunkens, gray-haired 58-year-old church janitor, was to be arraigned in court today on a formal charge of first degree murder for the death of Ruth Zwicker, pretty 24-year-old music teacher.

Lunkens was in the Ohio State reformatory here twice, once more than 30 years ago for the slaying of a Cincinnati woman, and later was returned as a parole violator when he was questioned in connection with the death of a Canton woman.

Police said that Lukens has admitted placing Miss Zwicker's body in the church furnace a few hours before Easter Sunday services. The charred human bones were recovered from furnace ashes last Friday.

Lukens maintained in his story to police that the young woman struck her head against a piano and was either killed or unconscious when he attempted to kiss her on April 12. She had gone to the church to practice Easter music on a piano.

Lukens told police he hid Miss Zwicker's body in a coal bin overnight and then placed it in the furnace the next morning.

$4,100 IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM PLANNED FOR CITY SCHOOLS

A $4,100 spring and summer improvement and repair program for Mansfield schools and grounds was approved last night by the board of education.

Set up by J. B. Moke, superintendent of buildings, the program includes new cement walks at Senior high school, materials for the improvement of athletic fields at John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed junior high schools and Senior high school, and painting and repairing of the interior of a number of the older buildings.

Largest item on the program is the construction of Senior high school walks on all sides of the building and a driveway at the west side of the building. Estimated cost of the work is $815.

Painting the walls of 50 rooms and the outside woodwork and sections of the steel bleechers at Stadium field will cost $760, Moke estimated.

Purchase of gravel, topsoil, fertilizer and grass seed for the three athletic fields is expected to cost $525.

Grading of the new John Simpson field across Bowman street has already been completed. The board of education purchased more than an acre of land at the site for the playground, obtaining title to the last of nine lots last month. There will be a football practice field on the property.

Other improvements included in the project are the repairing of roofs on all the buildings, putting heating systems in condition, repairing floors doors and windows, and large chimneys at the John Simpson junior high school and Brinkerhoff school.

Moke said work on the buildings will get under way soon with the schools' maintenance staff doing most of the labor.

Laff-a-Day

"You army men think you can date any strange girl you see. Where shall we go?"

Up and Down THE STREET

Inside the Mansfield postoffice today it sounded as though officials there had gone into the chicken business. A small shipment of day-old chicks were making a stop there. The chicks were cheep-cheeping merrily away as postoffice employes went about their business. "Each year," Postmaster H. E. Homberger said, "Thousands of chicks, ducklings and turkeys pass through the postoffice about this season." The chicks are not fed in transit and must reach their destination in not less than 72 hours after leaving their point of origin, Homberger said.

In the midst of the confusion at Sunday night's big fire, Humphryes company officials thought that one of their trucks had been stolen. A stranger had been seen driving one of the trucks from the company garage. A check later revealed that the stranger had been removing the truck to a safer location. Mansfield police, searching for the truck after the company had filed its complaint, found it parked nearby.

Deputy Sheriff Glen Humphrey turned cow-puncher today in the regular course of duty. Humphrey was called out to the Jacob Leuthner farm on Oak street road to find a stray cow which has been "visiting" the Leuthners since Sunday. The family asked Humphrey's said in finding its owner. The errant bovine is described as being a Guernsey about five or six months old, answering to the name of "Bossie."

Jacob Bohland, 15, of 281 Newman street, has been reported as missing but Mansfield police feel sure that the only thing Jacob feels he is missing may be punishment for playing "hookey." Mrs. Joseph Nagy, his mother, reported to police last night that her son had been missing since morning and had not attended school. She later reported that one of Jacob's chums had telephoned to say that he and Jacob had spent the day in Toledo. Police feel that the boy is in Mansfield but is afraid to return home and are searching for him about the city.

THREE INJURED

Man, Wife and Son Hurt as Auto Strikes Truck.

Minor injuries were sustained by three persons today in a collision between a passenger car and a truck loaded with steel on Route 42 three miles south of Lexington.

Jerry M. Lewis, sr., 46, of Rochester, N. Y., driver of the passenger car sustained a cut knee. His son, Jerry Lewis, jr., 16, sustained lacerations, while Lewis's wife, Margaret, 39, was cut about the face.

They were treated at Mansfield General hospital. Jerry Lewis was admitted to the hospital for observation. Hospital officials reported his condition as "good."

Fred R. White, 26, of Lodi, driver of the truck was uninjured.

Lewis told state highway patrolmen who investigated the accident that he had misjudged the distance between his car and the truck. His car hit the rear-end of the truck as he was about to pass it one the highway.

SENATOR SAYS ARMY FAVORS LONGER TIME

Military Officials Reported Seeking Declaration of Full Emergency.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Acting Chairman Reynolds (D. N. C.) of the senate military committee said today he had heard unofficially that the army might seek legislation to extend selectees' training beyond the basic one-year period.

Two other committee members told of similar reports, involving both selectees and national guardsmen.

Senator Connally (D. Tex.) informed reporters that a group of national guardsmen had told him they might be held in army camps for more than a year. He added that he had no official information on the subject.

Senator Johnson (D. Colo.) said he had heard reports emanating from army officers that congress would be asked to declare a full state of emergency, under which men in training would be retained until congress declared the emergency ended.

More than 400,000 men chosen under selective service now are being trained at various army camps. The present law provides that the earliest group be released after completing one year of service likewise was to have been limited to a year.

Army officials have said that there will be no final decision until June on whether selective service men should be held beyond a one-year period.

There was general discussion, meanwhile, of whether the draft ages of 21 to 35, inclusive, should be changed. Johnson said he believed the senate committee would approve a change to 18 to 28 and added he personally favored making the limits 18 to 21.

Connally said he did not believe any change should be made until the present emergency is over.

In another field of military affairs, Johnson prepared legislation providing a "bonus" of $100 a month for any person in the land or naval forces who served abroad or who performed convoy or escort duty.

The bonus would be paid to all men and officers in addition to their regular salary.
